Uncle Sam's Marines Land, Capture Lighthouse and Light Lamps All Along Eastern Coast of Porto Rico.

SAN JUAN GRIM AND SILENT.

Spanish Commander Confident That He Can Drive Back American Attack as He Did Sampson.

(Copyright 1898 by Associated Press.)

On board the Associated Press despatch boat off San Juan de Porto Rico, Aug. 4, via St. Thomas, D. W. I., Aug. 5. The Americans have taken peaceful possession of the eastern portion of the island.

Small parties of marines have been landed, who have lighted the lamps in the lighthouse at Cape San Juan and on other lighthouses along the coast. They met with no resistance. Indeed at Capo San Juan deputations of citizens came out to meet them.

The warships now in this vicinity are the Montgomery, the Annapolis, the Puritan and the Amphitrite. The two former are looking for the transports with the troops which left the United States and have scattered all about the island.

The Annapolis rounded up the Whitney, the Florida and the Raleigh yesterday and they are now at Cape San Juan. There seems to have been a serious mistake as to the rendezvous, for no two ships go to the same place and it will take several days to locate them and get them to Ponce, where Gen. Miles is waiting.

Off San Juan the cruiser New Orleans alone maintains the blockade.

The city is grim and silent, but back of her yellow walls there will be plenty of determination to fight when the Americans fire.

Capt. Gen. Macias has issued a proclamation in the course of which he says: "Spain has not sued for peace, and I can drive off the American boats now as I did Sampson's attempt before."

The daughter of the captain general is helping to drill the gunners in the forts. Altogether there are 8500 Spanish regulars in the city. The troops of the enemy who are retreating from Ponce and other towns on the south coast occupied by the Americans have not yet arrived.

The German steamer Polynesia, with a cargo of rum, canned meats and tobacco, tried to run the blockade this morning but was stopped by the New Orleans.

WILL BE MOVED.

Camp of Surrendered Spaniards Unhealthy.

Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 4—4.10 P. M.—(Delayed in transmission)—Gen. Toral, the commander of the Spanish troops, sent a letter today to Gen. Shafter, advising him that the camp of the surrendered Spanish troops is in an unhealthy condition. He said there were several hundred sick in their hospital and an average of 12 deaths a day.

Gen. Shafter will take action at once in order to improve the sanitary condition of the Spanish soldiers and their camp. The transports expected here to convey the Spanish troops back to Spain have not yet been heard from.

14TH MAINE ELECTS OFFICERS.

Portland, Aug. 5. At the annual reunion of the Fourteenth Maine regiment association today, these officers were elected: Thos. J. O'Neill, of Portland, president; F. M. Noble, Norway, first vice president; W. L. Doloff, Boston, second vice-president; W. A. Gates, Needham, Mass., third vice-president; Willard Carver, North Auburn, secretary; Newton E. Stowe, Mechanic Falls, treasurer; Stewart Worster, Deering, Calvin S. Gordon, Roslyndale, and J. J. Gallagher, Dorchester, executive committee; T. K. Holbrook, Waltham, John A. Spear, Gardiner, and W. M. Somers, Pittsfield, Me., finance committee.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF NECESSARY.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 5. The schooner Cambridge arrived here today and brings a tale of terrible suffering on the coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador. The party was on a prospecting expedition and included Dr. Morris, whose services were required at Lewis Inlet night and day to give relief to persons sick and dying from starvation. Large quantities of provisions were distributed among the vessel. The same condition exists all along the coast. There are 1000 persons similarly situated and immediate relief is necessary. The failure of the fisheries will tend to further increase the suffering.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Sec'y Alger Issues Statement Concerning Shipment of Shafter's Troops North From Santiago.

Washington, Aug. 5. When the President closed his official work today he had not received the reply of Spain nor any intimation as to how soon the reply might be expected. The French ambassador has not been heard from throughout the day, and he, as well as our government officials, are waiting for Spain to give the final response.

Two days have now passed without a word officially from Spain, either in the way of inquiry or response. From this it is clear that the Spanish cabinet fully realizes the time for argument, counter-proposals or modification has gone by and that there is only one simple issue to be met, namely, whether the American terms will be accepted as a whole or rejected.

There is indeed reason to believe that the Spanish government has been directly advised that the stage of negotiations is past and that only the matter of an answer, favorable or unfavorable, remains. That the answer has not come quickly is no matter of surprise to the officials here, for they realize the tremendous responsibility which Premier Sagasta must assume in making the peace terms sufficiently palatable to the Spanish people and the political leaders to permit their acceptance without an internal convulsion.

In his conferences with the President and Secretary Day the French ambassador has brought out clearly the great task before Sagasta. It seems to be the general view here that if the premier and his ministers were untrammelled an acceptance would come at once and that the parliamentary peace arrangements would be now closed. But, in preparing the Spanish public and in guarding against political agitators and public men of other parties, the Madrid officials are taking time for missionary work not only among themselves, but also all political and social elements.

The best informed persons here fix next Monday as the time when the United States government is likely to receive Spain's final answer, but this is simply conjectural, for there is not the slightest means of knowing the tendency at Madrid. The answer might come tomorrow, but in the event of its coming late in the day or on Sunday, it would not be communicated to the government until Monday.

There is the same confident belief among officials that there has been from the first that Spain's answer would be a reluctant, but none the less conclusive acceptance. At the same time it was suggested today in some quarters that there was a possibility the disclosures made by the American general at Santiago concerning the serious condition of our troops might be a straw at which the Spanish cabinet would grasp. This is quite doubtful, however, as there is a question whether the statement of the American general ever got outside the borders of the United States owing to the strict censorship imposed last night. Moreover, all the evidence reaching the officials here indicates that Spain is weary of the conflict and is convinced beyond the slightest question of the hopelessness of further opposition.

THE "ROUND-ROBIN" QUESTION.

The day would have been remarkably dull at the war department, considering the existence of a state of war, had it not been for the publication in the newspapers of the "round-robin" signed by the military commanders at Santiago and the short but sharp correspondence between Col. Roosevelt and Secretary Alger. These afforded food for much discussion among all classes of officials and the belief was general that there are to be further interesting chapters in the correspondence, providing it is deemed harmless to the best interests of the army to allow further publications.

In proof of the allegation that the war department had bestirred itself to succor the unfortunate army in Santiago before the united protest was made, the following statement is given out by the secretary of war regarding the shipment of troops north from Santiago.

"Until quite recently it was supposed that yellow fever was epidemic in Santiago, and it was not believed that it would be safe to send ship loads north of men largely infected with yellow fever. The disease, it was believed, would spread rapidly on board ship and result in the death and burial of many at sea.

"On the 20th ultimo the secretary of war telegraphed to Gen. Shafter that as soon as the fever subsided the men of his command would be moved north to the camp that has been selected for them on Montauk Point. On the 30th of July Gen. Shafter telegraphed:

"'Made known secretary of war's telegram that troops would be moved north as soon as fever subsided, and it had a very good effect on the men.'

When, however, the true condition was made known, an order was issued to Gen. Shafter to move his command north as rapidly as possible and all ships in the quartermaster's service possible to get to Santiago were sent there and the liners St. Paul and St. Louis were also ordered there. All this was done before the communication signed by Gen. Shafter and his generals was received and before Col. Roosevelt's letter was published.

"Over 150 surgeons are at Santiago and 175 immune nurses have been sent there besides the usual hospital corps that always attends such an army. There have been less deaths in Santiago by yellow fever than by typhoid fever in any camp of the same size in the United States."

Two messages were received at the war department today from Ponce, the first announcing the death of a brilliant young army officer and the second, from Gen. Miles himself, touching the trouble in the 6th Massachusetts regiment which was the subject of official inquiry by Secretary Alger yesterday.

Details of the latter telegram are not obtainable, but it is apparent that Gen. Miles is determined to repress sternly at the very beginning any departure from military discipline, even among the volunteer element in his command. As near as can be gathered the officers of the Sixth declined to submit to an examination which was prescribed by the brigade officers, the proper authority, and upon the insistence of the latter they sought to resign their commissions. Gen. Miles himself is dealing with the case, and if he should decide to allow these officers to resign or discharge them from the service of the United States and the latter is possible, the governor of Massachusetts will be called upon to appoint their successors.

It can be said that up to this time the officials are thoroughly satisfied with Gen. Miles' conduct of the Porto Rican campaign and they do not hesitate to admit that the events that have occurred since his landing at Guanica fully justify the arbitrary changes made by him in the carefully laid plans of the department for the conduct of the campaign.

S[illegible]S[illegible] [illegible]FERS W[illegible] S[illegible]

Madrid, Aug. 5, 3 P. M. In the conference between Senor Sagasta and Senor Silvela, the latter urged that it was imperative to summon the cortes for the negotiation of a treaty of peace. Gen. Polavieja, who was present, declined subsequently to speak of the conference to representatives of the press on the ground that his duty as a soldier imposed secrecy upon him, but Gen. Azcarraga said that if Spain possessed adequate resources the war should be continued in order to secure more acceptable conditions; otherwise peace ought to be immediately concluded.

Gen. Chinchilla, captain general of Madrid, said: "We have a brave and well disciplined army and it is ready to go wherever it is sent."

Later Senor Sagasta conferred with Senor Salmeron, the republican leader, who told the premier in the course of a long conference that he blamed the government for closing the cortes and stifling the press.

After the interview he said he had assured Senor Sagasta that he would reserve his opinion on the general situation until the chamber was convoked, but that neither directly nor indirectly would he support the "existing oligarchy which is the cause of all Spain's misfortunes."

This evening the premier will confer with Gen. Weyler, Marshal Primo de Rivera, Senor Gamazo, minister of public instruction and public works, and Senor Romero Giron, minister of the colonies.

An official despatch from Porto Rico says: "American cavalry assisted by the insurgents have captured Pueneta and Cabejas, the lighthouse station at San Juan."

WAVE OF PROSPERITY PREDICTED.

London, August 5. The Statist predicts a great wave of American prosperity after the war, and active European business in American securities.

"Cuba," it says, "will give employment of a vast amount of capital; and the stimulus to industry there will react upon the United States. The investments in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines will particularly benefit railways."

STEAMER DEL NORTE OVERDUE.

San Francisco, Aug. 5. Advices from St. Michael of July 25, state that the steamer Del Norte with 350 tons of government reindeer supplies and a number of Laplanders is long overdue at St. Michael. She left here June 21 with four tows, all flimsy river vessels. The Del Norte is under charter to the United States to carry Sheldon Jackson to Siberia on a reindeer purchasing expedition. He is at St. Michael's awaiting her.

CHINESE SITUATION

Causing Much Anxiety in England.

London, Aug. 5. There is great uneasiness on all sides here in view of the Chinese situation, which is regarded as being an open conflict between Great Britain and Russia within measurable distance and it is universally felt that the Marquis of Salisbury's yielding to Russian aggressiveness is responsible for the dangerous complications, which can only be overcome by the most prompt and most firm action, that Russia's open opposition to British commercial concessions must cease.

In connection with this, a curious story is current. It is now said that the Princess of Wales' hurried departure from England was in response to a dispatch from her sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia, bearing upon the Anglo-Russian relations. It is well known that the Dowager Empress is strenuously working to conclude a definite understanding regarding Anglo-Russian interests in the far east and it is stated great importance attaches to the meeting of the sisters at Copenhagen. It was reported on the stock exchange during the day that the British government had monopolized the St. Petersburg wire for 24 hours.

DISCREDITABLE, IF TRUE.

The Trouble in the Massachusetts Regiment.

Boston, Aug. 5. A Transcript special from Ponce, Porto Rico, says: Of the Sixth Massachusetts' officers, the colonel, lieutenant colonel and three majors and three captains resigned. They were charged with incompetency and lack of discipline. The trouble in the Sixth Massachusetts is partly attributed to the fact that white officers refuse to return the salutations of the negro company. The examination, no doubt, will end in a separation, which will be in effect a disbandment.

Porto Rican whites are puzzled and ask: "Will the blacks be better off under the Americans than under the Spaniards."

DEPARTMENT INQUIRY.

Washington, Aug. 5. At the instance of the Governor of Massachusetts, Adjutant General Corbin has telegraphed to Gen. Miles at Ponce saying that the secretary of War wishes to know if there is any unusual causes or incident connected with the reported resignation of the colonel and lieutenant colonel of the 6th Massachusetts regiment. The report of these resignations was to the effect that much friction had occurred between the brigade staff and the officers of this regiment leading up to a large number of resignations by regimental officers.

[illegible] TROOPS [illegible]

(Correspondence of Associated Press.)

Guanica, Island of Porto Rico, July 25, via St. Thomas, D. W. I., July 26. When the Associated Press despatch boat Cynthia II arrived at Guantanamo Bay last Thursday, July 21, at 6 P. M., and reported to Com. McCalla of the Marblehead, and was promptly ordered to hoist the yellow flag, as she had touched at Santiago de Cuba, those on board of her had no idea of going to Porto Rico. But some ships having been noticed in the offing, the despatch boat hailed the flagship New York, asking for their identification, which brought back the reply by megaphone:

"That is Gen. Miles and his squadron. They have started for Porto Rico."

Thereupon the despatch boat promptly put to sea and followed the transports and their convoy of warships to Porto Rico.

For four days and nights, through stormy weather, abreast of the Gloucester, the despatch boat pitched and tossed into a head sea, to the great discomfort of those on board.

The transports were slower than the porpoises that clumsily gambolled around them and there was a great feeling of relief when Gen. Miles on Sunday morning headed south by west, into the Mona passage, and it became known that the southern and not the northern coast of Porto Rico was to be the scene of the landing of the American army on the island of Porto Rico.

Early on Monday morning the Gloucester turned boldly toward the Porto Rican coast and steamed into a harbor which the charts showed to be that of Guanica. Steadily the Gloucester went ahead of the Massachusetts, the Yale and the Columbia, not to mention the tardy transports, her lead line constantly going and her commander pointing out the safest anchorage for the big warships outside the points which embraced the harbor.

As the Massachusetts and her consort let go their anchors, Lieut. Commander Wainwright headed the Gloucester into the port and for a time she was lost to view. Shortly afterward the reports of her six pounders were heard and then silence followed. The despatch boat thereupon obtained permission to enter the harbor and steamed in after the Gloucester.

The harbor of Guanica is an exquisite place—a veritable haven of rest, with high mountains for a background, a bay of considerable extent, a plateau of cultivated meadow land stretching from the beach to the mountains, a score or so of pretty painted houses on the line of the shore, a sugar mill on the right, a blockhouse distant a couple of miles on the left, and directly in front of the place a small log house before which floated the Spanish flag.

As the despatch boat entered the harbor those on board of her saw the launch of the Gloucester, with a rapid fire Colt gun in her bow, land about thirty sailors under Lieut. Huse. The little party promptly advanced on the run to the spot where the flag was floating. The red and yellow of Spain was quickly hauled down and then up went the Stars and Stripes on the Spanish flagstaff as a hearty cheer echoed over plains and heights.

A few minutes later there was a spiteful spatter of bullets around the Gloucester and the despatch boat from a squad of Spanish soldiers who were concealed among the houses up the main street of Guanica, which runs direct from the beach. In less time that it takes to tell it, the treacherous guerilla-like foes who had not fired a shot while their flag was up, were fleeing in every direction before the answering fire of the Americans ashore, backed up by the guns of the Gloucester. The four six-pounders of the converted yacht shelled the blockhouse and the hills to the west, sending some Spanish cavalry, on their way to reinforce Guanica, hurrying towards the mountains like jack rabbits before a prairie fire.

Ashore Lieut. Huse and his men had not been idle. "As much for practice as anything," as he quietly put it, "they threw up an intrenchment across the street, mounted the Colt rapid fire gun on its center, tangled some barbed wire in front of the entrenchment to repel a possible cavalry charge, signalled for reinforcements and then opened fire on the Spaniards with the Colt, with the result that four of the enemy were soon killed, while not one American was even wounded.

It was only a skirmish, after all, but it was as gallant a little scrimmage as one would wish to see. The presence of an active foe was not suspected after our flag was raised and the Spaniards were well concealed by the houses, trees, etc. of the neighborhood.

Gen. Miles stopped on his way ashore boarded the Gloucester and warmly thanked Lieut. Commander Wainwright; for had not the Spaniards been uncovered by the Gloucester's fire many American lives would have been sacrificed in the landing of the troops which followed. When Lieut. Huse and his men were relieved by a battery of the Fifth regular artillery and returned on board the Gloucester they were most heartily cheered by the soldiers on the transports and by the crews of all the vessels.

It is probable the Spaniards would not have been so willing to attack the Americans if they had been able to see the big warships and the transports outside the harbor.

The landing of the troops was conducted in a methodical manner and was easily accomplished. Boat load after boat load of men, and sometimes long strings of boats towed by the steam launches of the Massachusetts, made for the shore and the troops formed into companies and promptly occupied the points of vantage in the neighborhood. A strong detachment of our troops was sent to Yauco, a small place about 5 miles inland, which forms the western terminus of the railroad leading to Ponce, 15 miles distant, due east. The highway thence is very bad, but the military road from Ponce to San Juan, 85 miles long, is in admirable condition and fully adapted for the passage of artillery and munitions of war. The port of Ponce contains considerable shipping and before this letter is published the cable will doubtless have announced the fall of the second city of fruitful, beautiful Porto Rico. The island, by the way is healthful, if ordinary care is taken and fears of yellow fever, as an epidemic need not be entertained.

At the request of Col. Whitney, of Gen. Miles' staff, who made the famous reconnoissance of Porto Rico, the despatch boat of the Associated Press tonight will take from St. Thomas to Guanica Mr. Phillip C. Hanna, consul of the United States at Porto Rico, who left San Juan at about the time Gen. Fitzhugh Lee left Havana and who has been in St. Thomas ever since. He will be able to assist Gen. Miles in a number of ways. He will take with him several Porto Rican guides for the use of the army.

The English residents of the island of Porto Rico, as a matter of course, are eager for American occupation and this is true, Mr. Hanna adds, of the French and German residents as well. In the light of the Cuban developments it may be pleasant to know that the insurgents of Porto Rico are merely insurgents at heart. That is to say, they are neither armed nor organized, and when our troops have captured Porto Rico there will be no unsolved problem to trouble our authorities.

IN making biscuit, cake, rolls, etc., if instead of using cream of tartar and soda, or soda and sour milk, Royal Baking Powder is employed to raise them, better results will be obtained.

"AND HE NEVER CAME BACK."

An out of town man went into Epstein's store on lower Broad street and tried on a suit of clothes. He then borrowed Epstein's cap and remarked that he would go into a saloon next door and see how the clothes fitted by means of the mirror's reflection. Followed by Epstein, in he went. Making an excuse he went into a back room and then slid out the back door. "And he never came back." The police are working on the case.

THE INFANTA MARIA TERESA IS FLOATED.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 5. The Merritt Wrecking Co. has received advices from Santiago that makes it certain that the Infanta Maria Teresa is now floated and is found to be in fairly good condition as to her machinery and boilers. She will shortly start for Norfolk under her own steam.

Another expedition on the wrecking steamer Chapman will be sent south next Monday or Tuesday, taking along four immense pontoons, especially intended for the raising of the Cristobal Colon.

[illegible] SUCCESSFULLY

Key West, Aug. 5. The steamer Wanderer returned here this afternoon after effecting successful landings of arms and ammunition at three different points on the Cuban coast. She left here early in July with about 40 Cubans anxious to join their fighting compatriots, and 11 members of the Third United States cavalry to protect the landing of about 2000 rifles and carbines, with nearly a million cartridges.

On July 23 she attempted to discharge her cargo at Bahia Honda, province of Pinar del Rio, but was fought off by a force of several hundred Spaniards, who peppered the ship's hull with Mauser bullets and killed three Cuban scouts who were in waiting to receive the expedition and wounded six of the Wanderer's crew.

The steamer then came back to Key West, left her injured men in the hospital here and started on her second attempt. This time she went to a point about six miles east of Bahia Honda, where she met a small party of insurgents from Col. Carillo's forces, but no Spaniards. About one-third of her cargo was discharged here and 25 Cubans were put ashore.

The Wanderer then headed for the mouth of the Manati river, province of Puerto Principe, where, on the night of July 30, she landed without difficulty about the same quantity of arms and ammunition and seven Cubans. From there she went to Porto Padre, where the remainder of her cargo and men were disembarked. All three landings were made without the necessity of firing a shot.

The torpedo boat Talbot returned here this afternoon.

On Monday last under a flag of truce the Talbot steamed to within a mile and a half of Morro castle, where the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Pluton came out and received her papers.

ADVANCING GRADUALLY ON SAN JUAN.

At Descalabrado River, six miles beyond Juana Diaz, on the road to San Juan, Thursday night, August 4, (via St. Thomas, D. W. I., August 5th). The 16th Pennsylvania, of Gen. Ernst's brigade, advanced to this point today and holds the bridge over the river.

The Second and Third Wisconsin are expected tomorrow. No sign of the enemy is reported, but it is believed that the Spaniards are about 400 strong between this point and Coamo.

The seizure of the bridge ensures control of the road to Coamo. Pickets are being pushed out and they may collide with Spanish outposts.

NO DECISION WAS TAKEN.

Madrid, Aug. 5, 10 P. M. At the cabinet council this evening Senor Sagasta recounted to his colleagues what had been said in the conference with the various political leaders earlier in the day. No decision was taken.

Senor Puigcerver, minister of finance, read a proposal to increase the note circulation and guarantee of the bank of Spain.

The council also considered an official despatch from Santiago, signed by Gen. Toral, saying that owing to the smallness of the camp which the Americans had conceded, the absence of tents and the improper food, the number of Spanish sick had increased to 10,000, the death rate being from twelve to fourteen daily. The despatch said also that the beds were altogether insufficient for so large a number of sick soldiers and that their deportation ought to commence immediately. He informed the government that the wound of Gen. Linares had not developed any complications but was causing him great pain.

A SICK HERO RETURNS.

Boston, Aug. 5. Col. Fred B. Bogan, of the 9th Massachusetts volunteers, arrived in the city from Santiago on the 11 o'clock train from New York.

THE FRAM IS REPORTED.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 5. The Norwegian brigantine Tibor, Capt. Fyogstad, 24 days from Reykjavik, reports passing Nansen's Arctic steamer Fram on July 14 in lat. 62.10 north, lon. 50.20 west. The Fram was proceeding northward and a heavy westerly wind was blowing. She signalled that all was well. The Fram this season is conveying a private scientific expedition, mainly English, under Dr. Nansen's old officer, Lieut. Johansen.

[illegible] SLOWLY [illegible]

London, Aug. 6. The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "The prospect of America abandoning the Philippines has well nigh brought on a panic. The insurgent leaders are greatly dissatisfied with the Americans and the British here. Mr. Wildman, the U. S. consul, has replied to Aguinaldo as follows:

"Trust to the honor and justice of the United States and let nothing interfere with the first task of throwing off the Spanish yoke. I believe in you. Don't disappoint me."

PROCEEDING REGARDLESS OF PEACE

Ponce, Porto Rico, Friday morning, Aug. 5, via St. Thomas. Gen. Miles is proceeding entirely without regard to peace negotiations. Krag Jorgensens are being issued. The second and third Wisconsin are moving up to the 16th Pennsylvania today. Col. Hulings has captured 5000 pounds of rice. Thus far the enemy has not molested him.

Gen. Brooke's landing at Arroyo is successful. The troops from the Roumanian, four batteries of the 27th Indiana, the 1st Missouri, the 1st Pennsylvania, and the 5th Illinois are disembarking there.

The Morgan troop of the 5th cavalry and the Mississippi commissaries have arrived here.

Lieut. Hunter of the artillery was slightly wounded by one of our pickets last night.

Capt. Edgar Hugert, who died of typhoid fever, has been buried with military honors.

Gen. Roy Stone is repairing the road to Arecibo, but a movement there is improbable.

MAJORITY [illegible] PEACE

London, Aug. 6. The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

"A majority of the politicians who conferred with Senor Sagasta counciled peace; but Senor Nocedal, leader of the Ultra-Montanes, urged war a'l'outrance, even if the Yankees, he said, were to capture the Spanish ports, as possibly, then an international conflagration would avenge Spain by placing her in a position to gain more than by making a shameful peace now. Senor Romero y Robledo, in an interview, said:

"Senor Sagasta informs me as to the contents of the American note. In addition to the demands already known the American government asks the occupation and possession of Manila and Subig Bay. M. Cambon obtained from President McKinley the substitution for the word "possession" of another word meaning practically the same thing."

"This revelation has caused a ferment here. It was understood at first that the Americans demand only temporary occupation pending arrangements for the future government of the Philippines. It is believed the powers will object to the Americans retaining permanent possession of Manila and Subig bay. The latter is a splendid naval station.

WANTS OUR PROTECTION.

London, Aug. 6. The Rome correspondent of the Daily News says:

"The Vatican has telegraphed the Archbishop of Manila instructions to place himself and his clergy under the protection of the United States in view of threatened attack by the insurgents. The archbishop's position is very odd, bearing in mind his foolish anti-American manifesto at the beginning of the war.

NOT TO BE TAXED.

Washington, Aug. 5. The commissioner of internal revenue has rendered a decision in which he holds that contracts of re-insurance with certain stated exceptions are not subject to the stamp tax.

In the case of receipts for rent and where there are no other recitals no stamp is required. But if the receipt contains any phrase that can be construed as a contract for the hire, use or rent, then in such cases the receipt is held to become something more than a bare receipt and should be stamped according to its tenor or effect. The insertion of the words in a rent receipt "as leased for 1898" is held to render it subject to tax.

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM CURED.

Dr. H. B. Hettinger, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "For several months after straining my ankle I was severely afflicted with rheumatism. I finally tried Detchon's 'Mystic Cure' for rheumatism, and in four days could walk without my cane; two bottles cured me sound and well. I take great pleasure in recommending the 'Mystic Cure' to all who are afflicted with rheumatism. Sold by J. L. Mountaine & Co., 83 Main street, and Caldwell, Sweet, druggists, Bangor, Me.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is designed and recommended for only the one thing. It acts directly upon one set of organs. No matter what is the matter with them, it will cure it. It will not cure anything else. It is a wholesome tonic, an invigorating nervine, or nerve-food as well as a healing medicine, and thousands of perfectly well women have found that by taking it regularly during the period of pregnancy, the danger and pain of parturition were much lessened, and in many cases almost entirely obviated.

In every American household there should be a copy of Dr. Pierce's great work, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," 1008 pages, illustrated. One copy free to any address, on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay for mailing only. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Birthplace of Josephine.

Fort de France, Martinique, is the strongest fortified point the French own in America. It is both a military and naval station, and a fort was erected on a mountain top there years ago, which has since been improved and strengthened by some of the most modern guns known to warfare.

During the civil war the United States cruiser Kearsarge chased the Confederate blockade runner Alabama into the harbor, and was on the point of opening fire on her when the authorities forbade it. Here they remained for some time, and during a stormy night the Alabama slipped out and disappeared in the Caribbean sea.

Several times the place has been badly damaged by tropical cyclones, during which hundreds lost their lives. It is noted as being the birthplace of the Empress Josephine; a life size piece of statuary of her adorns the principal plaza. The fort has had for years but one family—the king of Dahomey and his six wives, whom the French captured after great trouble in the African wilds and imprisoned.—Philadelphia Record.

His Two Questions.

"I say, pa," began little Clarence Callipers, with the rising inflection of one who earnestly desires to acquire important information, "what"—

"Oh, I don't know," replied his long suffering sire wearily.

"Yes. But the question I wanted to ask isn't foolish, pa."

"H'm! If it isn't foolish, you may ask it. But remember, just one question and no more."

"Well, pa, there are two of 'em that I want to ask. One is, which is the smartest, the man who knows enough to know that he don't know much or the man who knows enough to look as if he knew everything? The other is, if the end of the world was to come and the earth be destroyed while a man was up in a balloon, where would he land, when he came down? And, pa, I don't know which one of 'em to ask."—Pearson's Weekly.

Hunger Madness.

The sufferings of pellagra are those well known in times of famine. The effects sometimes do not entirely disappear. A woman of my acquaintance near Monza, who had the pellagra some years before, was considered cured. She was the wife of a prosperous shopkeeper when I knew her. The only remaining trace of her malady was that from time to time she stopped in conversation, a look of anguish came into her eyes, and she would say in her dialect: "Il pan l'o bon, e il vin l'o bon ma il pan l'o bon!"—Bread is good, and wine is good, but bread is good! The horror of that suffering from starvation had never left her.—"Hunger and Poverty In Italy," by Mrs. Dario Papa in North American Review.

The Brooklyn Bridge.

The greatest suspension bridge in the world is the Brooklyn bridge, which also leads the world in the number of its daily passengers. Its length, including approaches, is 5,989 feet, the distance between the towers 930 feet, the weight of the structure is 6,470 tons, its cost was over $15,000,000. The bridge cars carry over 45,000,000 people every year.

[illegible] News.

The woolen men of eastern Maine will meet at Skowhegan today.

The Boston steamers are having large passenger lists. The warm and pleasant weather this summer has been conducive to a desire for sea travel.

A good sized party went on the excursion to Northport, and Camden in the steamer Tremont on Friday.

Attention is called to the "ad" in another column of the sailings of the New York and Bangor freight steamers, beginning Aug. 15. A fine service will be given.

The fall term of the University of Maine will open this year on Sept. 21, three weeks later than usual. The vacation at the end of the winter term will be two weeks shorter, or four instead of six weeks, as in previous years.

On Friday Judge Burgess of the court of insolvency declared a partial dividend of 10 per cent. in the Elisha W. Shaw case. Later on there will be another smaller dividend on the aggregate indebtedness of $153,116.02.

Mr. P. A. Richardson, secretary of the Maine Division L. A. W., was in Waterville this week making arrangements for the fall meet, which will take place on Labor Day.

A watchmaker says that they find that after a hot day and night such as were recently experienced mainsprings will break from no apparent cause, but really due to extremes of weather. He added that probably every other watchmaker's experience was the same as his.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Maine Universalist convention held at the Elm House in Auburn on Thursday for the transaction of routine business was attended by Rev. Elmer F. Pember, of Bangor.

The races announced for Friday over the West Penobscot fair ground track at Exeter were postponed to today at 10 o'clock owing to the rain. The classes to be called are the ladies' race, 2.39, 2.20 and free-for-all.

Rev. John T. McBean, who went to Porto Rico a few weeks ago in charge of a Y. M. C. A. relief tent, and now reported ill of malarial fever, is a native of Calais. He is well known at West Kennebunk having preached at the M. E. church two years.

County Attorney F. I. Campbell of Cherryfield has been presented with a Harriman patent steel-bowed landing net by the Maine Sportsmen's Fish and Game Association as a prize for having caught the biggest laker at the recent excursion to Moosehead.

Next Tuesday the B. & A. will run an excursion from stations on the Greenville division to Bangor, where the excursionists will take the steamer Sedgwick for Bucksport. The train will arrive here at 9.25 and the steamer will be taken immediately upon the arrival at the Exchange street station. The number of tickets for the excursion is limited to 300.

Hon. C. A. Marston, of Skowhegan, well known in Bangor, was in Waterville Thursday to have a pistol bullet located by means of the Roentgen rays. Mr. Marston was aroused by burglars in the house last July, and taking his revolver stepped out of bed to give chase. He was at that time clothed in his night shirt. In stumbling round in the dark he collided with a rocking chair and, the pistol, becoming entangled in his night shirt when he fell, was discharged. The ball entered the instep. Until Thursday, when the foot was placed under the Roentgen rays, the ball could not be discovered.

The storm of yesterday has cleared off, evidently taking the fog which has been hanging about the coast, with it. Sunday promises to be fair, and no better way is afforded for a pleasant way of spending the day than a trip down river to Northport. Steamer Salacia leaves Bangor at 9 A. M. for that favorite resort, with the Oldtown band. The boat will reach Northport at noon and at 2 o'clock the concert of the Belfast and Oldtown bands will take place. The boat will leave Northport for the return to Bangor at 5 A. M. Thus five hours of recreation with musical accompaniment will be allowed excursionists at these popular pleasure grounds. Tickets are 50 cents each and will be on sale at the boat.

The reports of illness in the ranks of the First Maine at Chickamauga have alarmed Gen. Richards, and he sent two telegrams to Col. Kendall and Major Bradbury, asking for the state of the health and the nature of the illness. The reported sudden increase in the illness in the regiment it is thought may be accounted for partly by the fact that pay day occurred but a few days ago, and perhaps some have been spending some of the money in buying too much food or fruit. This some might have indulged too freely. Whatever is the cause General Richards wished to know, and, if it is as he supposes he can set the minds of many an anxious parent or relative in this State at ease by telling them that the fevers are not so prevalent as have been reported. Gen. Richards believes the real cause for the illness should be given out, as many are given cause for worry at home when it is stated that all have fevers of some sort. He thinks the general health will be very much better when the effect of the change of camp is realized and the sun will be very much better than the shade. He has campaigned in the South and therefore knows of the ways and effects of the climate.

LOOK OUT FOR WALTEMATH'S MOON.

The Weather We Are Having Is Due to Its Erratic Behavior.

Dr. George Waltemath from Hamburg, Germany, son of an American citizen from California, is still hunting for a stray moon. It should cross the sun, he says, on or about July 31, or in the first days of August, and will not take longer than an hour and five minutes for its transit across the sun's surface. The course of the moon will be from left to right and from bottom to top of the sun's disc.

The moon, which in his German circular Dr. Waltemath calls the third moon, was observed by Postdirektor Ziegler of Greifswald on Feb. 4. In a separate slip printed in English he says: "The second moon was seen before the sun on Feb. 5 at Wiesbaden, Germany and by three German officers in China. It will be seen again on or about July 30, a few days sooner or later, like a dark round spot crossing the sun. Look out for this rare sight!" Professional astronomers have expressed doubts as to the correctness of these observations, but for their skepticism Dr. Waltemath feels only contempt.

His moon runs from east to west in a direction contrary to that of the bright moon, and its course is very eccentric. It is a real weather and magnetic moon, and whenever it is about to cross the earth's course it disturbs the atmosphere and surface of the earth, producing storms, rain, tempests, magnetic deviations and earthquakes, which are of course much stronger when the moon comes closer to the earth. This has been the case for more than half a year and probably accounts for the mild winter and the moisture of the last few months. The importance of finding out where it is, therefore, is self evident.

Any one who stumbles upon this second or third moon is requested to communicate the fact to Dr. Waltemath. He will do well to have his evidence corroborated by as many other persons as he can, for the astronomers do not believe in the new moon, and will work havoc with his reputation for veracity.

AT RIVERSIDE PARK.

Large numbers of people have visited Riverside park this week, the excellence of the performance given by the colored Virginia Troubadours being a drawing card. The park is a very attractive place during the warm weather and the numerous attractions of entertainment by the Troubadours, the dancing, boating, the enjoyable and cooling ride, etc., make Riverside the mecca of many. It is always refreshing at the park, as its location enables every bit of the river breeze to circulate. On Sunday the free concert will be appreciated by a crowd.

The concert by the Bangor band at Bangor House park on Friday evening was attended by the usual large and appreciative crowd of people. The band under Director Woods played with much skill and harmonious effect a well chosen program which pleased everybody. The band stand has been moved nearer the center of the park. The new addition the Bangor House, just completed, was illuminated and made a brilliant light effect for the concert.

EXCURSION TO BAR HARBOR.

The big annual excursion to Bar Harbor via the Maine Central railroad on Sunday, August 7, will be a trip which many persons will take. The trains will leave Bangor at 8.15 and 11.35 A. M. arriving at Bar Harbor at 1.50 P. M. This excursion will be one of the best of the summer.

EAST CORINTH NEWS.

There was a most delightful reunion of the surviving children of the late Franklin M. Meader, with their families last Monday at the house of Dearborn Blake in Atkinson. There were whom all were living four children of Mr. Meader, all daughters. There are but three now, the eldest, Mrs. Collata, widow of the late Capt. G. Stover, having died at Bucksport in February last. The three surviving are Mrs. Sewall Brown, of East Corinth, Mrs. A. M. Robinson, Jr., of Bangor, and Mrs. D. Blake, of Atkinson. These three sisters are all good singers as well as most of the members of their families, and the evening spent in singing war songs and other old time hymns, mingled with cheerful conversation, dealing in reminiscences of the past, was not only very pleasant but really one to be long remembered.

Ira H. Davis, Esq., and wife in most liberal fashion entertained the East Corinth Literary Circle at their cottage at Little Pushaw Lake Wednesday.

The clergymen of this place held a meeting for the workmen on the Penobscot Central railroad at South Corinth a week ago last Sunday afternoon. About one hundred of the men were present; also many citizens of the place. The men seemed to enjoy the meeting and the superintendent invited the pastors to hold another meeting last Sunday, and they would have done so, had they not been hindered by the storm. But there is to be a meeting next Sabbath afternoon, in the pine grove where the railroad men are now encamped near Brown's mill in Charleston.

Mr. C. E. Edmunds and family are absent spending a few weeks in recreation at Bar Harbor.

Dr. C. S. Philbrick is home on professional business from Northport, where his family are taking their vacation.

Rev. George Kneeland, pastor of the Free Baptist church, is off on vacation.

Rev. Edwin C. Brown, pastor of the Freeport Congregational church, preached at the Baptist church last Sunday a most practical and timely sermon on "Heroism." The preacher's thoughts were so aptly put as to delight and captivate the congregation.

Mrs. Hiram Gould, who has been visiting her sister in Newport several weeks, returned home a few days ago.

Mrs. Hersey, wife of Lieutenant Mark L. Hersey, who has been with General Shafter through the Cuban campaign and who is now convalescing from the yellow fever at Santiago, is with her two children visiting Mr. George Hersey, father of the lieutenant.

Miss Gould Hutchinson, who is employed in Bangor, is home visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hutchinson.

A. M. Robinson, Jr., of Bangor, in the early part of the week visited at the home of his brother-in-law, Rev. S. Browne.

BITS OF GOSSIP.

Even when Wilhelm II. relents in his discipline, the relenting constitutes as severe a warning to the delinquent as the most vicious punishment. One morning at breakfast he entered unattended one of the barracks at Potsdam. The regiment stood ready in the yard for roll call; the officer on duty was wanting. For a quarter of an hour, the regulation quarter of an hour of grace, Wilhelm waited. The officer only appeared a quarter of an hour after that. Not a word was said; the emperor went away without vouchsafing either a syllable of reproach or greeting to the culprit, who already considered himself as good as lost, and who in anticipation shut himself up in his own apartments. Aware of the prompt habits of the emperor he waited the whole of the morning, the afternoon, the evening. Nothing came. At last, toward 9 P. M., there was a ring at his bell; his servant handed him a small parcel, instead of the dreaded and expected "blue letter," the terror of every Prussian officer. In feverish haste the officer tore off the wraps. The parcel contained a small alarm clock, with the emperor's compliments.

Old Things.

"'As easy as an old shoe,' is a familiar saying," said Mr. Staybolt, "and there can be no doubt that an old shoe is a mighty comfortable thing. After we have worn the new shoes, close fitting, hard and formal, how gladly we put them off, and with what joy we put on the shoes that are old and worn and familiar to the foot! Old shoes, however, are not the only things old that we like. We like an old bed; if it is not too old, but just old enough so that while still soft and comfortable it is also shaped somewhat to the body, which it supports at every point, yielding a degree of comfort which not the finest of goods can afford when it is new.

"But it is so with all things old, that are not too old, including old habits. We cling to them so long as they give us comfort, and we hate to change. We are creatures of habit, who would if we could follow to the end along the first comfortable rut we fall into and never look out above its sides. And it is well for us that our shoes wear out and that we have to buy new ones and wear them, that we are in various ways compelled to change, that we are rooted out now and then and set going anew."—New York Sun.

The Passion of the Hour.

Every year modern habits become more unlovely and modern sensibilities more blunted. The preservation of what is beautiful, per se, at the present time is almost always ridiculed, unless it can be shown to be joined to some profit or utility.

The characteristic passion of the hour is greed—greed of possession, desire of acquisition and passion for ostentation. Trade has become an octopus embracing the whole world. The thirst for gain engrosses all classes. Beauty, unless it be a means of gain, is to this temper a useless, or worse than a useless, thing; it is regarded as a stumbling block and incumbrance. It is doubtful if even the power of perceiving what is beautiful has not in a great measure left a large part of the population in all countries. Modern cities would not be what they are now had not the race to a great extent grown color blind and become without the sense of proportion. Modern builders and modern engineers would remain unoccupied were not the generations which employ and enrich them destitute of all artistic feelings.—Ouida in Fortnightly Review.

Color East and West.

California is beautiful in color—red, purple, yellow. No other state and few countries can compare with it in this. When Californians come east, however, they are delighted with the scenery and they explain that it is the greenness of everything. Their colors are more gorgeous, but they are high and hot and dry, the damp, dark tones of the east are an esthetic bath.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

GREAT EVENTS

are accomplished by seizing the opportunity, watching for the right moment and taking advantage of it. History bristles with instances of it; the record of our own country marks the facts by the deeds of Paul Jones, a Farragut, a Dewey, a Schley—business life records it every day; our knowing where, how and when gives us possession and enriches you with the best of everything for the least money.

We Bought the Splendid Stock of Henry Lowell of Lewiston, Me., Just at the right time.

It has crowded our store during the past week, and will for the week to come.

All through the rush and bustle of the past week we've never quoted prices, and yet we had repeatedly to close our doors. THAT MEANS CONFIDENCE.

The War Situation.

While awaiting Spain's answer to the peace conditions imposed by the United States, the principal topic of discussion around Washington Friday was the publication of the round-robin signed by the military officers in Santiago. It was naturally suggested that the publicity given this matter might have a tendency to influence the Spanish decision now pending. Whether this is the fact or not the publication was most unusual.

The officials at Washington have not been unmindful of the sad conditions confronting the army at Santiago and for some time have been preparing to remove the troops as rapidly as possible. The papers that were shouting loudest "on to Cuba," although it was known just the conditions that must be faced in that country, are to-day denouncing the officials because our troops are in this fever ridden land. With an army of Spanish prisoners at Santiago it stands to reason that our forces cannot all be withdrawn. Long before the communication referred to was published orders had been issued to General Shafter to move his troops North as rapidly as possible and all the ships available were ordered there for that purpose. It is now officially stated that there have been fewer deaths in Santiago from yellow fever than from typhoid fever in any camp of similar size in the United States.

The failure to receive an answer from Spain causes no surprise in Washington where the difficulties confronting Sagasta in dealing with this problem are fully appreciated. The fact that it has been made quite plain to Spain that the conditions forwarded by the United States were in the nature of an ultimatum, affords reason for deliberation, as the answer must be definite one way or the other, thus adding to the responsibility of those entrusted with the duty. The answer may come at any time, but if it goes over to next week it will not be surprising. The belief is generally entertained that when the answer does come it will be an acceptance.

Madness to Reject Conditions.

The Madrid despatch printed in another column indicates that the Spaniards are beginning to take a more sensible view of the war situation. In a recent interview Marshal Martinez de Campos openly favors peace. He says that neither this government nor any other that can be formed can change the situation so far as Spain is concerned, and he adds that it "would be madness to think of rejecting President McKinley's conditions." Sensible men can take no other view of the situation and those who are still advocating a continuance of the war do so from personal rather than patriotic motives.

RAVELING A YELLOW YARN.

The Work of the House Naval Committee—Some Facts About Naval Construction.

(Special to the Whig and Courier.)

Washington, Aug. 3. It has been the popular belief that the distinctive yellow journal monopolized the art of naked and unvarnished falsehood. Most newspaper readers will be surprised, therefore, to learn that a reputable journal like the Philadelphia Press has been caught with cream on its whiskers. That paper of the 2d instant contains a long Washington despatch devoted chiefly to the alleged purpose of the navy department to increase the limit of speed in the battleships hereafter to be built, to 18 knots or better to which it asserts Secretary Long is committed. After displaying at length what the writer does not know about the subject, he closes with the reckless statement:

"Primarily, the House Committee on Naval Affairs, which last the limit on these battleships as to size, is to blame for the decision of the department to build ships of only 16 knots speed. Something seemed to be wrong with the House Naval Committee during all of last session, as it not only retarded war preparations and did not take steps to give the Administration the power to increase the number of men in the navy until the war had been going on for a month or more. Then it put in the naval bill this extraordinary provision about battleships."

Now see how "a plain tale shall put this impostor down." During the consideration of the naval appropriation bill by the House Naval Committee the Secretary of the Navy and all the chiefs of the department bureaus were invited before the committee and submitted their views upon every feature of the bill. The provision of the bill as it was adopted was as follows:

"That for the purpose of further increasing the naval establishment of the United States the President is hereby authorized to have constructed by contract three sea-going coast line battleships carrying the heaviest armor and most powerful ordnance upon a displacement of about eleven thousand tons, to have the highest practicable speed for vessels of their class, and to cost, exclusive of armor and armament, not exceeding three million dollars each, one of said battleships to be named the Maine."

That provision was made in accordance with the desires and designs of the department and its bureaus, of speed or displacement was examined by the Senate committee, where again the naval officials were called to criticise and suggest amendments, and finally passed the Senate unchanged in terms. The bill was completed by the House committee and reported by Mr. Boutelle to the House on the 22d of March, a full month before the war began, and neither after "the war had been going on for a month or more," nor at any other time subsequent to the reporting of the bill to the House was this provision nor the bill or changed in any material respect. The veracious correspondent was in error chronologically to the unimportant extent of two months or more.

Next respecting the allegation that the House retarded war preparations by delaying the authorizing an increase in the naval force. Bear in mind that Mr. Boutelle made the Committee's report one month before the war broke out, and at a time when the President and all reasonable men hoped that peace was possible. Yet in that report he said:

"In view of the exigencies requiring an addition to the enlisted force to man the vessels put into commission, the committee have provided for an increase of 2,000, to be composed of 1,750 men and 250 boys. The Department also urgently requested authority for the appointment of 25 acting assistant surgeons and of 15 assistant paymasters, which are provided for in this bill, causing an increase under "Pay of the Navy" for officers, men, and boys of $670,400."

This provision also had the approval of the Naval officials, and was all they required at the time. Before the Senate completed the consideration of the appropriation bill, war was upon us, and that body amended the bill by an appropriation of $8,830,000, or so much as might be necessary for the increase of the naval force, such increase to be left the naval force, such increase to be left Navy, of course under the control of the President as commander-in-chief of all the war forces. The bill came back to the House and was referred to the Naval Committee on the 20th of April, just five days after the beginning of hostilities. The House Committee was unanimous in confirmation of the increase proposed, and urged immediate action upon the bill in the House. How much it "retarded" the necessary preparations for war is shown by the fact that the bill was considered by the conferees of the two houses, repassed by the two houses, signed by the President and became a law on the 4th day of May, just seven working days after the declaration of war. Verily, the imagination that could conjure up such a vicious yarn as this press correspondent has woven out of an entirely baseless fabric should be a potent recommendation for his employment by the most reckless of yellow journals.

It is proper here to add some real information respecting the alleged policy of the Navy Department touching the construction of the battleships. The Secretary of the Navy, like a good many other people who have taken note of the developments in naval warfare since this war began, would like to increase the speed of the battleships. He thinks possibly it may be done, but neither he nor any other authority in the premises is committed to a change of plans, without qualification. I am at liberty to say that the experts in naval construction are not wholly satisfied that a material increase of speed can be had without making an undesirable sacrifice in other respects; they differ among themselves as to the expediency of making radical changes. The fact is, the battleship as now in our service is a complete fighting machine, every part of which is necessary. In order to increase her speed you must increase her power of propulsion and consequently occupy more room with engines, which room must be taken from some other object necessary to the efficiency of the boat. One of the best authorities in naval construction tells me that no material increase of speed can be obtained, except by lightening the armor and armament, in both of which he thinks this war has demonstrated the superiority of our system of construction. He therefore sees difficulty in the increase of speed unless there can be an increase of size in the ships, and here again is objection because of the shallowness of many of our principal harbors, as compared with those abroad. While, therefore, this subject, together with others suggested by the war, is under serious consideration by the naval officials as well as by the most successful builders, they are unable to easily and so quickly to determine the proper course to pursue as the penny-a-liners, who sit around watching for sensations to spring upon the unsuspecting public.

PRESQUE ISLE NEWS.

Men Return From Shore Line Road Operations.

Arrivals and Departures of People Well Known—Notes of Interest.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Presque Isle, Aug. 5. Mr. O. F. A. Phair and wife have returned from their wedding tour.

Mrs. F. P. Tinter is now visiting her parents in Andover, N. B.

W. A. Stout returned from a visit to Woodstock, Fredericton and St. John Wednesday.

Hon. T. H. Phair has returned from an outing at St. Andrews.

Rev. H. L. Calkins will exchange pulpits with Rev. Mr. Wood of Caribou Sunday.

Miss Ada Smith returned from Boston, Tuesday, where she has been preparing for a trained nurse.

Rev. David Boyd will arrive here Saturday and services in the Free Baptist church will be resumed Sunday.

Last week some twenty men went from here to work on the Shore Line Railroad, but did not find things to their liking and are returning or going to other places. A party of five reached here Wednesday, having walked all the way from Calais.

Quite a party of picnickers left here yesterday for Centreville, where they will meet another party from Woodstock, among them Fred S. Moore and family, formerly of this place.

C. R. Baker and family, C. E. Gooding and family, M. O. Smith; V. E. Howe and wife, Eben Williamson and wife and Rev. Mr. Brannon and wife are among the campers at Squa-pan Lake this week.

G. H. Collins, wife and daughter, Lottie, returned from St. Andrews Tuesday night. R. J. Smith and wife, Mrs. A. B. Estabrook, Mrs. Charles DeWitt and Miss Mary Collins of the same party went on to St. John.

Work on Fred P. Whitney's new residence on Fort street is progressing rapidly.

C. L. Bullard's new tin shop on Bridge street is up and boarded, and a part of it clapboarded and painted.

The following officers of Gen. Custer Lodge, No. 47, K. of P., were installed Wednesday: C. C., J. S. Hodgdon; V. C., J. O. Oak; P., Silas Southard; M. of W., D. A. Howe; K. of R. and S., G. M. Taber; M. of F., E. S. Perry; M. of E., F. P. Tinker; M. at A., S. B. White; I. G., Thos. McBride; O. G., E. L. Guion.

Dr. S. W. Boone is in Chelsea, Mass., where he is to take his examination in army surgery.

J. H. Judd, Frank Owen and Willie Owen started Saturday morning for a month's fishing trip at the lakes.

Judge Smith and Fred Wiggin started Friday morning with a canoe and plenty of tobacco and corn cobs for big fish lake. They intend to be gone about eight days if the tobacco holds out.

Quite a party from here drove to Centreville, N. B., Thursday evening, where they were met by a party from Woodstock led by F. L. Moers, formerly of this place, and a picnic was held. Nearly everyone in the crowd was a singer and a very enjoyable day was had. The people from here arrived at home about 9 P. M.

Eben Williamson returned Thursday from Boston, where he has been spending his vacation.

The normal school commission who are traveling through this part of the state were in Presque Isle Friday and met the representative business men of the town in the Presque Isle House parlor and listened to the reasons why there should be a normal school in Aroostook county, and why it should be located in Presque Isle. These were presented by Rev. Mr. Calkins, G. M. Park, Rev. Mr. Harbutt, C. P. Allen, Esq., and others. If such an institution is to be located in the county there is every reason why it should come to Presque Isle.

SANGERVILLE NEWS.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Sangerville, Aug. 5. The water in the reservoir above the dam is getting quite low on account of the dry season and the Sangerville Woolen Company think that they will have to make a change in the running of their mill. The carding and spinning will go on nights and the rest of the mill days as they will have to disconnect their water wheel and depend solely on their engine, which will cause them to discontinue the electric lights on the outside owing to a lack of power to carry the dynamo.

Mrs. Hanah F. Herrick and daughter, Sylvia B., are visiting at Mrs. E. K. Clark's, Mrs. Herrick's sister.

F. H. Carr, treasurer of the Sangerville Woolen Co., is not only a manufacturer of woolens but has some knowledge of gardening as well. We had the privilege by invitation from Mr. Carr to look over his garden the other day and we found most everything the heart could wish in making up a real good dinner. Mr. Carr makes quite a business of small fruits such as raspberries, blackberries and gooseberries and he has as fine a selection as we have had the pleasure of witnessing for many a day.

F. D. Barrows, of Foxcroft, was in town today.

Dr. Hunnewell and wife, of Madison, passed through town yesterday on their way to Sebec Lake.

BELFAST NEWS.

Serenade for Returned Klondiker—Band Out in Spite of Bad Weather.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Belfast, Aug. 5. Thursday evening was very foggy, but the band turned out just the same and gave a fine concert on the common. After the concert they proceeded to the home of Hon. H. E. McDonald, where to the surprise of that gentleman and a party of friends a serenade was given just outside the door. Mr. McDonald and his brother arrived here Thursday morning from the Klondike gold regions, having been some 1800 miles beyond Dawson City, and the members of the band thought a serenade would not be out of place.

The party of gold seekers of which Mr. McDonald and his brother were members have all returned with the exception of Mr. Chas. O'Connell, who is now on the way home. The party left this city last March and since that time have been traveling nearly all the time.

OUR IMPERIAL CLARION, The Foremost of Them All.

There can be Nothing that is "Just as Good."

THE COURTS OF EUROPE BEHIND THE SCENES.

A very funny story is current in court circles in London with regard to the recent visit of the Crown Prince and Princess of Greece.

It seems that the Crown Prince had in attendance upon him a very amiable and charming young Greek colonel, who became a general favorite. One day the Prince of Wales found him apparently lost in meditation with tears streaming down his face, standing in front of the bust of a young girl, the work of the famous sculptor, Thornycroft, and a perfect gem of art in its way. On the British heir-apparent inquiring as to the cause of his grief he replied in broken tones that the bust was the very image of a dearly loved sister who had died some time previously. With his usual kindness and delicacy the Prince that same evening gave orders for the bust to be conveyed to the colonel's rooms with the request that he would accept it as a souvenir of his stay under the Prince's roof. Had matters remained at this point there would have been no further comment. But it seems that during the stay of the Crown Prince and Princess at Windsor Castle with the Queen the colonel went through identically the same performance in connection with a miniature by Boucher which he declared to be the very image of his dead fiancee. On Princess Beatrice, to whom he made this admission, imparting it to the Queen, her Majesty insisted on presenting him with this valuable miniature.

Somehow or another the old Duke of Cambridge heard of these two little incidents, and being a great enemy of all humbug, rightly or wrongly set down the colonel as a joker. Consequently, when some time afterward at a dinner given by the Duke to the Crown Prince of Greece at Gloucester House, the colonel intimated that a Madonna by Andrea del Sarto was the absolute image of his dead mother, the crusty old veteran who has preserved a Georgean coarseness of language had no other comment to make than, "Oh, h—," with which he turned his back on the disconcerted young officer.

KING OSCAR AFFRONTED.

The temperance and Salvation Army doctrines propagated in Sweden and Norway by the Queen and by her second son, Prince Bernadotte, are having a deplorable effect upon the discipline of the army and of the navy. After the affront to which King Oscar was subjected a few days ago by one of his officers it is probable that he will yield to the requests of his Ministers and call upon his son to choose between the alternative of resigning his commission in the navy or else abandoning his religious crusade which leads him to preach at street corners and to take part in Salvation Army parades, while his wife, Princess Bernadotte, the ex-maid-of-honor, to marry whom he surrendered his rights to the throne and his royal prerogatives, has even been seen in the streets and public thoroughfares arrayed in the peculiar garb of a Salvation Army "lassie."

It seems that King Oscar, when he visited the ancient city of Carlsborg the other day, attended a grand banquet given by the local authorities, in his honor and to which the officers of the garrison were invited. At the close of the dinner King Oscar, remaining in the dining hall, commenced to converse in his usual genial and kindly manner with those who had been his fellow-guests, and who one after the other came to pay him their respects. Among others who approached him for the purpose was a staff captain who holds the position of Deputy Governor of the Royal Swedish School of Infantry for the Education of Non-Commissioned Officers. In the course of the conversation the King, according to the custom of the country, invited the captain to touch glasses with him and to drink to one another's health, an ordinary form of courtesy among equals, but a particular honor when tendered by a monarch to one of his subjects. Frowning in a most unfriendly manner, and raising his voice, the captain informed his Majesty that his temperance principles would not permit him to touch the glass which the King was holding out.

Rather startled, King Oscar, with undismayed kindliness and perfect breeding, exclaimed:

"My dear captain if you do not care to drink at least take an empty glass so that I may have the pleasure of touching glasses with you."

The captain was silent for two full minutes, evidently considering what he had better do, and then again declined, stating that his principles would not permit him even to do that. The King thereupon without betraying any loss of temper or irritation of any kind turned to another guest.

In order to appreciate the affront to which the King was thus publicly subjected not only as a monarch, but also as supreme head of the army, it is necessary to bear in mind that among officers of the armies of continental Europe, there is no more unpardonable insult than to refuse to touch glasses, the drinking itself being but a matter of form and not absolutely necessary.

Moreover the manner in which the captain declined the "skoll" tendered by his Majesty was distinctly aggressive, as if to give to this most temperate and admirably behaved of European sovereigns a lesson in abstemiousness.

It is safe to say that in any other country of Continental Europe, the action of the captain would have entailed the most severe disciplinary measures, especially if it had occurred in Germany, where a civilian has just been sentenced to three months imprisonment on a charge of "lese Majeste" for having refused to rise from his chair at a public banquet when the Emperor's health was proposed.

What renders the matter still more serious, is the fact that the captain's actions is openly approved by a large number of his fellow-officers who having been converted by the King's second son to his own way of thinking, are now rivalling one another in bigotry, asceticism, and extravagant views to the detriment of the discipline of the army and navy.

THE MISUNDERSTOOD EMPEROR.

Emperor William the other day in the course of a public address, complained that he was the most misunderstood monarch in Europe and subsequently in private conversation repeated this assertion, citing the following instances in illustration thereof:

It may be remembered that there has been no phase of the Kaiser which has excited more wide-spread condemnation, and criticism than the Latin words, "Regis voluntas suprema lex," which he inscribed below his name in the Golden book of the City Council of Munich. Those words were held to indicate the Kaiser's conviction that the will of the Sovereign was superior to every law.

Yet the Kaiser explains now that he meant nothing of the kind. It seems that the honor of inscribing one's name in the golden book is reserved exclusively for the members of the reigning House of Bavaria and therefore William at first declined to comply with the old Prince Regent's request that he should sign his name on its time-honored pages. On the Prince Regent insisting, the Emperor laughingly exclaimed:

"Well here in Bavaria it is thou who art Master, and under the circumstances I have no alternative but to obey thy commands."

And as he then inscribed his name the Latin words by which it was followed bearing reference to the fact that in signing he had merely obeyed the commands of the ruler of the land.

ELLSWORTH NEWS.

Celebration of Victory of Hose Racing Teams.

Victorious Fire Laddies Met by Band and Given Breakfast at Hotel—Republican Caucus Makes Strong Nomination.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Ellsworth, Aug. 5. The news which came from Bath yesterday afternoon from the scene of the firemen's muster was [illegible]. Once more the local teams the Dirigos and the Senator Hales have vanquished all comers and for the second time this summer have brought big prizes home. There were eight teams in the long race at Bath.

The Dirigos won $75. Both teams are loud in their praise of the way the races were conducted.

In the coupling race both Ellsworth teams had a coupling blown up by the rush of the water through the hose and so got no time. But they had not expected to win this contest. The Dirigos had not put in three evenings' practice at it.

The victory of the Dirigos was celebrated at the Dirigo Athletic Club by an illumination, a band concert and the display of fireworks during the evening. This morning Monaghan's band met the returning runners at the station and both teams were given a breakfast at the American House at the expense of the members of the Dirigo Club who stayed at home.

Members of the winning team are unanimous in praise of the way in which their captain, C. E. Sinclair, has handled his men. The team has not been beaten since he took charge last summer and there is no doubt that he will be reelected to the post this fall. The runners who won the first honors yesterday were Charles W. Eaton, Charles H. Leland, George Brooks, Fred Flynn, Otis Collins, C. K. [illegible], Colin McKenzie, Jr., Zeleuca Dyer, [illegible] Brooks, Fred Wood, Elmer Day, [illegible] W. Campbell, Charles S. Grows, [illegible] Flynn, William McAvoy, [illegible] Brown, Charles Shea and Harry [illegible].

At a Republican caucus in Hancock [illegible] Friday afternoon C. H. Drummey was nominated as the party's candidate for representative to the Legislature. Mr. Drummey is well known in this section as a young lawyer whose career will be worth watching. He has been prominent in local politics, having served for several years as city treasurer, and is chairman of the Republican city committee. He is president of the board of trade and a member of a number of local social organizations. Two years ago Mr. Drummey was admitted to partnership in the law firm of Hale and Hamlin; the other members are Senator Hale and Hon. H. E. Hamlin.

The caucus was presided over by [illegible] Rollins, chairman, and O. W. Tapley secretary. The only other business done was the selection of the city committee.

Arthur B. Cook, of Lewiston, on a leave of absence from Fort Popham, [illegible] Friday and spent the day with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cook, of this city.

Young Mr. Cook is a private in Battery A, which has been stationed at Fort Popham on the Kennebec since the opening of hostilities. He is anxious to get a shot at the Spaniards before the war is over, but fears he will be disappointed.

One of the heaviest rain storms of the year came down on this town Friday morning.

Mrs. T. S. Hale and Miss Helen Hale left town Friday morning for a visit to friends in Boston.

BREWER LOCALS.

Mrs. R. W. Merrill, who has been visiting at the Woodbury cottage, Northport, the past week, has returned home.

Alderman and Mrs. C. C. Worth and Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Preble have returned from a camping out trip down the bay.

Samuel O'Connor of South Brewer and Miss Kate O'Regan of Grand Falls N. B., were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon at St. John's Catholic church, by Rev. Edward McSweeney. The bridesmaid was Miss Mamie McDonald of South Brewer and the best man was Clement Mutty. Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will reside at South Brewer.

Hon. H. P. Sargent and family of South Brewer are occupying their cottage at Northport.

The regular meeting of the city council was held Thursday evening and the following business was transacted: The committee on water made a report recommending the establishing of a hydrant service at Brewer and Elm streets at South Brewer and the report was accepted and the committee authorized to contract with the Public Works Co. for the service. Leave to withdraw was given the petitioners for the extension of Fling street, as the committee on streets reported that in their opinion public necessity did not demand the extension of the street. The committee on streets was instructed to repair the concrete sidewalk on State street near the residence of J. D. Holmes. Street Commissioner Burr's report showed that he had spent $221.55 during July and that the balance unexpended to the credit of the street department was $1103.13. Alderman Young made a verbal report relative to the work on the school houses.

STOCKTON SPRINGS.

Our correspondent writes: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimball and Miss Anna Grady returned to Boston Thursday.

Mrs. Mary Griffin and children and Frank P. Paterson, of New Bedford, Mass., are visiting at Capt. Frank Patterson's.

Dr. and Mrs. Herman Hichborn, of Cambridge, are at Capt. H. A. Hichborn's for a few weeks.

Mr. William Devereaux, of New York, and Miss Mabel Dilloway, of Malden, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Carrie Devereaux.

Mrs. Phineas Griffin and children, of Boston, are visiting friends in Searsport and Stockton.

Capt. Melvin Colcord is home again after a few weeks' absence in New York.

C. A. Seger, of Worcester, Mass., was in town recently, the guest of Mrs. Elman Dickey.

Ambrose Bragg, of Lincolnville, spent a few days in this village recently calling upon friends.

Mrs. Jennie Bragg and son Lester, of West Brookfield, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Ralph Morse.

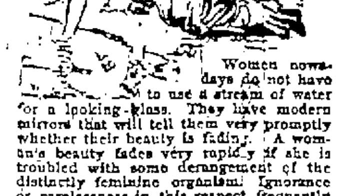

Mrs. Albert Gardner and daughter Flora, of West Newton, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albion Goodhue.

Mrs. Sarah Clifford has returned from New York and opened her house on Church street. It is expected that her daughter, Mrs. Frank Colcord, and children will join her soon.

Willard Staples, of East Brookfield, Mass., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Staples.

A pleasant company are occupying the Farnham house for several weeks. They are the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren of Mrs. Edith Fletcher: Mrs. Samuel Lewis and daughter Adelle, also Lennie May and Lewis Berry, of Portland; Mrs. Albert Crockett and Mrs. Joseph Field and children, Marion and Merrill, of Charlestown, Mass.; Mrs. Charles Black, of Belfast, and Charles Hardman and son Murray, recently from Liverpool, Eng., comprise the company at present. Mrs. Willard Berry is expected to join them in a few days. As Mr. Clifford Fletcher's family live in the village Mrs. Berry's arrival will complete the family circle, all of Mrs. Fletcher's living descendants.

Mrs. Vehie Ryder, of Liverpool, Eng., is visiting her parents, Capt. and Mrs. J. F. Hichborn.

Women nowadays do not have to use a stream of water for a looking-glass. They have modern mirrors that will tell them very promptly whether their beauty is fading. A woman's beauty fades very rapidly if she is troubled with some derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. Ignorance or carelessness in this respect frequently causes great suffering and irregularity in after life. Little irregularities and weaknesses in girlhood should be looked upon promptly and properly treated at once. Mothers cannot be too conscientious in this respect, and cannot throw aside the prudery that is so prevalent upon this point too soon. Every young woman should know something about her own physical make-up, and the importance to her future of her local as well as general health. A woman who suffers from weaknesses peculiar to her sex will rapidly lose her beauty, her general health, her amiability and her usefulness and capability as a wife and housekeeper. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription promotes regularity of all feminine functions, gives sturdy health to the distinctly feminine organism and prepares it to meet the trials of wifehood and motherhood. The "Favorite Prescription" is not a cure-all. It is intended for but one class of disorders and is good for no other. Taken during the period of gestation, it makes parturition easy, and banishes the discomforts of the expectant months. All good medicine dealers sell it.

GEN. WHEELER'S OFFICIAL REPORT ON SANTIAGO BATTLE.

Washington, Aug. 5. The following report of Major-General Joseph Wheeler, on the operations before Santiago de Cuba, has become available:

Before Santiago de Cuba, July 7, 1898.
To Adjutant General Fifth Army Corps.
Sir:

After the engagement of June 24 I pushed forward my command through the valley, Lawton's and Kent's commands occupying the hills in the vicinity of that place. After two days rest, Lawton was ordered forward and on the night of the 30th instructions were given by Maj. Gen. Shafter to this officer to attack Caney, while the cavalry division were ordered to move forward on the regular Santiago road. The cavalry division advanced and formed its line with its left north of Santiago road, while Kent's division formed its line with the right joining the left of the cavalry division.

Col. McClernand of Gen. Shafter's staff directed me to give instructions to Gen. Kent, which I complied with in person, at the same time personally directing Gen. Sumner to move forward. The men were all compelled to wade the San Juan river to get into line. This was done under very heavy fire of both infantry and artillery. Our balloon having been sent up right by the main road, was made a mark of by the enemy. It was evident that we were as much under fire in forming the line as we would have been by an advance, and I therefore pressed the command forward from the covering under which it was formed. It moved into open space in full view of the enemy who occupied breast works and batteries on the crest of the hills which overlook Santiago, officers and men falling at every step. The troops advanced gallantly, soon reached the foot of the hill and ascended, driving the enemy from from their works and occupying them on the crest of the hill. To accomplish this required courage and determination on the part of the officers and men of a high character and the losses were very severe. Too much credit cannot be given to Gen. Sumner and Gen. Kent, and their gallant brigade commanders, Col. Wood and Col. Carroll of the cavalry, Gen. Hamilton S. Hawkins, commanding first brigade, Kent's division, and Col. Pearson, commanding second brigade. Col. Carroll and Maj. Wessells were both wounded during the charge, but Maj. Wessells was enabled to return and resume command.

Gen. Wykoff, commanding Kent's third brigade, was killed at 12.10, Lieut. Col. Worth took command and was wounded at 12.20 and the command then devolved upon Lieut. Col. Ewers, 9th infantry.

Upon reaching the crest I ordered breastworks to be constructed and sent to the rear for shovels, picks, spades and axes. The enemy's retreat from the ridge was precipitate but our men were so thoroughly exhausted that it was impossible for them to follow. Their shoes were soaked with water by wading the San Juan river, they had become drenched with rain and when they reached the crest they were absolutely unable to proceed further. Notwithstanding this condition, these exhausted men labored during the night to throw up breastworks, furnish details to bury the dead, and carry the wounded back in improvised litters.

I sent word along the line that reinforcements would soon reach us and that Lawton would join our right and that Gen. Bates would come up and strengthen our left. After reaching the crest of the ridge, Gen. Kent sent the 13th regulars to assist in strengthening our right. At midnight Gen. Bates reported and I placed him in a strong position on the left of our line. Gen. Lawton had attempted to join us from Caney, but when very near our lines, he was fired upon by the Spaniards and turned back, but joined us next day at noon by a circuitous route. During all the day on July 2nd the cavalry division, Kent's division and Bates' brigade were engaged with the enemy, being subjected to a fierce fire and incurring many casualties, and later in the day Lawton's division also became engaged.

During the entire engagement my staff performed their duties with courage, judgment and ability. Special credit is due to Lieut. Col. J. H. Dorst, Maj. Wm. D. Beach, Capt. Joseph T. Dickman and Lieut. M. Steele. I also desire to say that Lieut. James Reeves and Joseph Wheeler, Jr., Capt. William Astor Chandler, Mr. Aurelius M. Estre, B. A. Carlington, Mr. Aurelius M. Estre and Corporal John Lundmark also deserve high commendation for courage and good conduct. Major West, my quartermaster, deserves special commendation for his energy and good conduct during the campaign and Major Valery Havard and Mr. Leonard Wilson have also done their full duty. Capt. Hardie and First Lieut. P. J. Koester with Troop G, third cavalry, were detailed with headquarters and conducted themselves handsomely under fire. The superb courage displayed by the officers and men and especially mentioned in the reports of the subordinate commander.

Our losses were as follows:

First brigade, third cavalry, killed 3 men, wounded 8 officers, 47 men; strength, officers 22, men 420.

Sixth cavalry, killed 4 men; wounded 4 officers, 50 men. Strength 10 officers, 427 men.

(Signed) Very respectfully,
Joseph Wheeler, Major General Volunteers.

AWNLESS BROME GRASS.

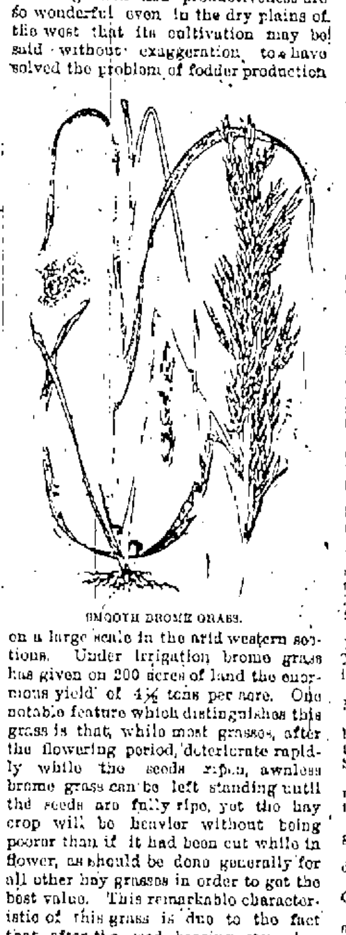

Valuable and Remarkable Characteristics Observed In Tests.

Two notable claims advanced for Bromus inermis, commonly known as smooth, awnless or Hungarian brome grass, are its excellent endurance of summer heat and drought and its ability to grow on comparatively poor and hard soil.

This is a perennial grass with creeping root stalks that send up erect, strong, smooth stems from 1½ to 4 feet high, with a free growth of leaves, and bears an abundance of seed. It has been well recommended for light soils in regions subject to extremes of temperature or long periods of drought, where the finer grasses do not thrive. Some years ago the South Dakota station said of smooth brome grass that it was the best grass yet tried at that station, catching well where properly sown, giving a good sod the first year and a fair yield of hay in favorable seasons. The forage, though coarse, was considered of excellent quality and under ordinary circumstances a large amount of early spring and fall feed could be obtained in addition to a good yield of hay.

Awnless brome grass is reported as remaining green in winter in the south, where it is esteemed for grazing. It grows well in cold climates, and Canadian reports speak very highly of it, both for nutritive qualities and luxuriant habit of growth.

In the report of tests with this grass under the direction of Dr. Saunders of the Canadian experiment stations it is mentioned as doing well on alkaline soil. The report further says: "Not only does awnless brome grass thrive in the rich, moist soil of the eastern provinces, but its growth and productiveness are so wonderful even in the dry plains of the west that its cultivation may be said without exaggeration to have solved the problem of fodder production on a large scale in the arid western sections. Under irrigation brome grass has given on 200 acres of land the enormous yield of 4½ tons per acre. One notable feature which distinguishes this grass is that, while most grasses, after the flowering period, deteriorate rapidly while the seeds ripen, awnless brome grass can be left standing until the seeds are fully ripe, yet the hay crop will be heavier without being poorer than if it had been cut while in flower, as should be done generally for all other hay grasses in order to get the best value. This remarkable characteristic of this grass is due to the fact that after the seed bearing stem has grown up a great number of leafy shoots spring up from its base."

What to Do With the Strawberry Bed.

Our usual method of treating a strawberry bed after the first picking season is to invert it and sow either cowpeas or clover, says a correspondent of Rural New Yorker. The only profitable crop we have ever gathered immediately succeeding turning under a strawberry bed is medium clover. Any strawberry bed which needs a plow to assist in cleaning it up should never be run a second season. We would remove the mulch and cultivate and hoe as we did the previous season if we wished to carry over the bed and begin at once after the first hoeing to spray with bordeaux and continue spraying at intervals until growth ceases, repeating twice the following spring.

News and Notes.

The statistician of the department of agriculture, from preliminary returns on the acreage of corn, estimates a reduction of 3 per cent from the area harvested last year. There is a decrease of 502,000 acres in Illinois, of 308,000 in Iowa, of 661,000 in Missouri, of 723,000 in Kansas, and of 482,000 in Nebraska.

A beekeeper says that those beekeepers living in or near a town would do well to exert themselves in inducing the town people to plant basswood trees in preference to other kinds.

American Cultivator says that when there is a fair set of fruit on trees or vines, if the fruit continues green longer than it should, a quantity of nitrate of potash very largely diluted with water will have a most extraordinary effect in hastening its ripening.

According to the July crop reports, with a few notable exceptions, among which is Georgia, with a condition of 104, indications as to the peach crop are somewhat unfavorable.

A new preparation under the name of "laurel green" is on the market as a substitute for paris green. According to chemical analysis of the Cornell station, it contains arsenic, copper and lime and sulphuric and carbolic acids. These same substances would be found in a mixture of paris green and bordeaux mixture after drying.

The library of congress ranks sixth among the libraries of the world in its present contents. France has the largest, England next; then comes Russia, and Germany follows with her libraries in Munich, Berlin and Strassburg, the last named holding almost equal rank with ours in Washington.

It is calculated that if the children under the care of the London school board were to join hands they would reach from London to Carlisle, a distance of 300 miles.

REPORTED LOSS

Steamer Supposed to be a Liner.

Said to Have Collided With an Iceberg.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 5. The mail steamer Virginia Lake arrived at Chateau on West Bay, 350 miles from here, at daylight this morning, bringing certain corroboration of the reported loss of an liner in the Straits of Belle Isle. A fisherman at Noddy Bay reported to her that he saw a steamer collide with an iceberg and sink soon afterward. The report is generally believed, but nothing reliable is obtainable. The fisherman said that the steamer looked like a passenger ship and he could see the people trying to launch boats, but she sank before they could do anything.

UNKNOWN IN NEW YORK.

New York, Aug. 5. The Straits of Belle Isle lies between New Foundland and Labrador, and is the most northerly of the two channels which connect the Gulf of St. Lawrence with the Atlantic ocean. It is 12 miles wide and navigation in it is reputed to be unsafe. It is not the route taken by passenger liners usually.

Messrs. Austin, Baldwin & Co., the New York agents of the Allen line of steamers, one branch of which runs between Montreal and Great Britain, said this morning that they were sure it was not one of their steamers which was lost. The only other Montreal passenger line of steamers they knew of was the Donaldson line. They believed that passenger liners never went by that route and that it could not have been a passenger steamer as reported.

TRANSPORT IROQUOIS

Has Arrived at Quarantine.

New York, Aug. 5. The United States transport Iroquois, known as No. 25, Capt. Kemble, arrived at quarantine at 7 A. M. today from Santiago with 170 soldiers. All were well on board excepting some of the passengers that had a slight attack of malaria while at Santiago. None have been sick since leaving Cuba. The following are among the passengers:

W. D. Powers, correspondent of the Boston Transcript; J. [illegible] Archibald, San Francisco Post; Frank Norris, McClure's Magazine; Col. D. B. Rogan, 9th Massachusetts; Col. John H. Page, 3d Infantry; Lieut. W. K. Jones, 6th Infantry; Lieut. H. D. Wise, 9th Infantry; Lieut. H. L. Warren, of Gen. Lawton's staff; Lieut. C. D. Roberts, 17th Infantry; Rev. Dr. H. C. McCook, chaplain 2d Pennsylvania; Gen. Weston, chief commissary; [illegible] Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, of Philadelphia; Thos. Henry, sergeant Co. B, 9th Infantry; J. Carroll, private Co. H, 9th Infantry; John E. Anderson, private Co. D, 9th Massachusetts, and N. T. Dawson, band, 1st District of Columbia.

Dr. Doty boarded the Iroquois and after an examination decided to hold the steamer for disinfection. He said he would probably land the passengers about 5 o'clock this afternoon and that the disinfection would be finished in time to permit the Iroquois to go to her dock before night.

YANKEE SPY IN SPAIN.

(From the London News.)

The following story from Cadiz throws an interesting sidelight on the Spanish-American war. It ought to be interesting and instructive to Spanish as well as English readers. My description of the hero is from personal acquaintance.

About six or seven weeks ago there arrived in Madrid a wealthy Mexican gentleman. His speech, manner and dress showed him to belong to that class of wealthy and aristocratic Spanish-Americans that travel about Spain much in the luxurious style of English noblemen of the last century, making the tour on the Continent, i. e., accompanied by couriers, hiring whole suites of rooms at hotels, sending presents to prima donnas, spoiling servants with their largenesses, and, in short, throwing their money broadcast. An "Americano"—a Spanish-American—is looked upon in Spain much in the same manner as a "Milord" was looked upon in France last century. People admire him for his wealth—real or apparent—and at the same time as a pigeon to be plucked and despise him accordingly. Well, Senor Fernandez del Campo (as I shall call him) came to Madrid just after the war broke out and hired a suite of rooms on the first floor in the first hotel of the Spanish capital. He was soon a great favorite in society and was known by reputation, at least, in every Madrid drawing room. He was a man of about thirty-seven, good looking, a typical Spaniard, with olive face, raven black hair, thick black mustache, black, sparkling eyes and firm chin and lips, showing character and determination. The Mexican Minister to Madrid vowed that he had never heard of Fernandez del Campo. But who will believe that the Mexican Minister was unacquainted, at least by name, with one of the largest landowners in the State of Chihuahua and a friend of President Porfirio Diaz? And on the part of a diplomatist is not silence the highest eloquence? Fernandez himself replied to allusions to this subject that he had no further object than to write his impressions of Spain in the Etoile Belge. But this was a little too thin. Fernandez replied that he knew French as well as his native language—a fact to which I can testify—he having spent three years as a boy at the Lycee Napoleon in Paris. But that was no argument, because he spoke German equally as well, and a London correspondent introduced to him at the Casino found that he had learned English grammatically, and with a little practice would soon become proficient.

HIS OSTENSIBLE MISSION

For the last fortnight rumors have been afloat in Madrid about a Mexican alliance against the United States. I was in Madrid at the time and I remember reading several nice articles on the subject. One of the best was, I think, in the Imparcial. The writer showed that such an alliance would be useful to Spain and Mexico. It was just as these doctrines were ripening in the minds of the Madrileños that Fernandez del Campo came among them. He did not stop long, however, and after a few days he told everybody that he would go to Cadiz, where there was something to see. Everybody in Madrid was sorry. Statesmen called on Senor Fernandez del Campo with offers of introductions to the Governor of Cadiz and the Admiral in command of the reserve squadron. The "Mexican Confidential Envoy" (for even that title was given him) declined the introductions rather haughtily. "If the Duke de Najera," he remarked, "and Admiral Camara wants to see me, they know where to find me; I shall be staying at the Hotel de Paris." Fernandez del Campo became the lion of Cadiz. The day after his arrival a major who sat next to him (by chance of course) at table d'hote, asked him whether he would like to see the Governor. Fernandez said he would be very happy and a few minutes later he was conferring with the Duke de Najera. "You will find Cadiz a dull place after Madrid, I am afraid," remarked the Duke; "but we will do our best to show you everything. By the way, you would like, of course, to see Admiral Camara. He told me he would be happy to see you. You had better call on him tomorrow morning." Some days after this Admiral Camara called in uniform at the Hotel de Paris and asked Fernandez del Campo to dinner. "My dear Admiral," said Fernandez, "I think you had better be my guest this evening." "Very well," said Admiral Camara, "but only on condition you dine with me this week. I will ask some suitable company to meet you." This conversation took place in the hall of the Hotel de Paris and was witnessed by an English newspaper correspondent. The latter subsequently met Fernandez in the reading room, but the Mexican, like a thorough gentleman, changed the conversation the moment it referred to military matters.

HIS NAVAL FRIEND'S CONFIDENCES.

"Are you staying long in Cadiz, Senor Fernandez?" asked a naval officer who sat beside the Mexican at Admiral Camara's table. "A few days," was the reply. "I should like to see your squadron off." "A few days," exclaimed the officer; "you mean a few weeks. We cannot possibly be ready before a month, and you may take it that we shall not sail from Cadiz for six weeks." "Don't write that to the Etoile Belge," called out another officer, and the whole table laughed at this joke at Fernandez's expense. "He is no more a newspaper correspondent than I am," whispered a naval officer who had just handed his card to Fernandez del Campo with an invitation to honor the officers of the Rapido by dining on board with them a few days hence. "Fernandez," remarked another, "is an officer in the Mexican army, and he may soon be fighting in our camp against the Americans. I have heard all about it from Madrid."

That night Fernandez challenged some of his friends to play, and he lost a hundred duros with them at monte. Like a true caballero, however, he bore his defeat cheerfully. If his friends mentioned their own day he would entertain them at dinner and take a hand at cards with them. He played and lost again and his guests came to the conclusion that a Mexican, at cards at least, was no match for a Spaniard. The dinner on board the Rapido passed off very gaily. Fernandez was taken over the splendid fast steamer, purchased you may remember, a few days before the war from the Norddeutscher Lloyd by the Spanish government. The officers confessed they had some difficulty in manning such a leviathan, the German engineer who took her out from Bremen to Cadiz having refused the most tempting offers to remain on board during the war. "She is very high built," remarked one of Fernandez's friends, "and I do not [illegible] all the woodwork in her. If a shell were to touch her she would blaze up like fireworks." "But we hope," remarked the officers, "to keep the Yankees at a distance. Come and see our quick firing guns."

Fernandez del Campo spent upward of a month between Cadiz, the dockyards of Carraca and the arsenal of San Fernando. At the latter place he went one Sunday to a bull fight where a quarrel took place between soldiers and sailors. The army and the navy officers were inclined to side with their own men, when Fernandez del Campo, who had acquaintances in both services, restored peace.

He was very nearly giving himself away in an interview with Admiral Aunon, who came down to Cadiz to see the squadron off. He confessed that he was organizing a corps of Mexican guerrillas to harass the United States army [illegible]. The Spanish Minister of Marine tried to get further confession from him, but the latter who felt that he had already said too much, would not be drawn. The best things in the world pall by repetition. Fernandez told his friends that he was getting tired of Cadiz and wanted to return to Mexico. "Do stop on a few days," pleaded the Spanish officers. "Today is Friday and the squadron—we may tell you in strict confidence—leaves next Thursday." There was, however, another reason for Fernandez's anxiety to depart. He had been rather extravagant and found that he must retrench, his hotel bill for a month having come up to £100. However he staid. In his last interview with the Duke de Najera the latter spoke of the imprudence of certain foreign correspondents who had just come to Cadiz. Among them he mentioned the names of Baron von Pertal, correspondent of the Kolnische Zeitung; Dr. Oskar Wolff, of the Berliner Borsenblatt, and the Daily News correspondent. He had already sent Dr. Oskar Wolff an intimation to leave Cadiz within twenty-four hours, and was about to take the same course with regard to the other two correspondents. "But you were just telling me," said Fernandez del Campo, "that they have done little else but walk around the town looking at the sights and changing impressions." "My dear sir," replied the Duke, "you cannot be too cautious. If these are correspondents they will not tell us so. You have no idea of the ruses Yankees will resort to in order to get information."

Fernandez stayed in Cadiz for a day or two after the departure of Adm'l Camara's squadron. He witnessed this event on board one of the Admiralty launches. "We keep on the other side of the bay," remarked one of the officers, "because those channels you see on our port beam (pointing in several directions) are defended with torpedoes in case the Americans come to Cadiz." One morning three Spanish gentlemen were walking up and down in front of the Hotel de Paris as if they were waiting for somebody. From beneath a movable shutter Fernandez popped out his head but withdrew it almost immediately. The three gentlemen waited almost an hour. The bells of all the churches of Cadiz rang for 12 o'clock. The three gentlemen entered the hotel and said they wanted to see Senor Fernandez del Campo. "You should have called an hour ago," said the waiter, "he is not here." "When is he coming back? We have orders to arrest him." "He sent all his luggage early this morning on board the Tangier steamer, and paying his bill he walked out alone by the back door. The steamer left her moorings half an hour ago."

RECOGNIZED AS TANGIER.

I was at Tangier a week or so ago. Shortly after arriving in Tangier I went up to the terrace of my hotel. In front of me a man was looking through a telescope, examining the Spanish coast, which that day could be seen distinctly from Gibraltar to San Fernando, near Cadiz. He turned round and I recognized the distinguished Mexican. "Hello, Fernandez, what are you doing here? I suppose you are back to Cadiz by the next steamer?" "I am not going back to Cadiz." "What is the matter? You speak good English now, and you have caught an American accent." "I am an American." "I do not mean 'Americano.'" "Exactly, I am a United States citizen and American officer. I graduated at West Point and I hold a United States commission as captain of the Second Texas Rangers." I was dumbfounded. All this was said in faultless English, with a genuine American accent about which there could be no mistake. As soon as I was able to speak I asked: "Well, your name is not Fernandez?" "Yes it is. I am from an old Kentucky family. My people have a ranch near Brownsville and another one just over the Mexican border, near Matamoros. So I speak Spanish like my mother tongue. In fact my family, if you trace it back far enough, is of Mexican descent. But (with a wink) I'm a good American. I have been acting at Cadiz as confidential agent of the United States government for six weeks. I have greened all the Spaniards."

Fernandez then told me his whole story, several points of which were afterwards confirmed by a gentleman whom I met at Gibraltar. "What about your story of the Mexican guerrillas you told Admiral Aunon about?" "It was a lie. I was compelled the last few days at Cadiz to talk rather tall; I played the game for six weeks. But at length I felt that some people were becoming suspicious, so I made everything ready to scuttle. What annoyed me most was my American passport. I required it for Gibraltar and Tangier, and yet I was anxious that in case of arrest nobody should see it. So I hid it." Mr. Fernandez told me the hiding place but as my business is not to give information to the police I need not mention it. It was a most ingenious manner of concealment. "I really did not need," he went on "to see the Minister of Marine, as he could really tell me nothing I did not know already. Admiral Aunon told to me that the Spanish fleet was in the highest state of efficiency. 'You unmitigated fool,' I thought to myself, 'you are just trying to hoax a man who knows just as well as yourself what to think of the Spanish fleet.' I am taking the steamer to England, and then home. I have done a good piece of business for my country. I sent information home every day. The United States knew of the departure of Admiral Camara's fleet a week before hand. They knew to a man the forces on board in men, arms and ammunition. We know exactly to a ton how much coal the Spaniards have, and in fact if my people put me any questions regarding the military and naval situation of Spain I think I can answer it."

The writer made a short visit at the knitting factory in this town on Thursday and found everything running in good shape. Their business is the knitting of mittens by machinery. They have about eighty machines in operation and are kept running the better part of the year. This business was started as far back as 1866 and the first sixteen years was done by hand. We were informed that at one time they had over one thousand names on their books as employees. In 1882 they commenced to use machines and have continued to use them up to date, having now bought 80 machines. Their contract is made once a year with the firm of O. E. Bailey & Co. of Boston. The past year's work was about 13,000 dozen pair of mittens and the contract price was between six and seven thousand dollars. The business is carried on by Mrs. A. C. Condon, who has associated with her as partner her son, S. Brainard Condon, and her two nephews, Carl and Norris Grindle. Most of the machines are located in houses where the operators live. They run about a dozen machines in the upper floor of their store in town. The second story is used for pressing, inspecting and shipping the mittens. Mrs. Condon also has a dry and fancy goods store on the street floor where may be found a full line of goods that please the many lady customers.

BROWNVILLE.

Our correspondent writes: The Brownvilles defeated the Milos in a hot ball game Wednesday at Milo. The Milos defeated the Brownvilles in their first game, score, 3 to 5, and this was the return game, score 7 to 1. The batteries were Newenham and Clinton; Crockett and Clark. Struck out by Newenham 18; by Crockett, 7. This club goes to Monson Saturday to play the Monson Club.

I MIND THE DAY.

I mind the day I'd wish I was a say gull flyin far;
For then I'd fly and find you in the west,
And I'd wish I was a little rose as sweet as roses are,
For then you'd maybe wear it on your breast,
Achray!
You'd maybe take and wear it on your breast.

I'd wish I could be livin near, to love you day and night,
To let no throuble teach you or annoy.
I'd wish I could be dyin here, to rise a spirit light,
So them above 'ud let me bring you joy,
Mavrone!
If them above 'ud let me win you joy.

And now I wish no wishes, nor ever fall a tear,
Nor take a thought beyont the way I'm led;
I mind the day that's over you and bless the day that's here.
There's to come a day when we'll be dead,
Achray!
A longer, lighter day when we'll be dead.

BILINGUAL TELEPHONES.

A Story at the Expense of a Milwaukee Millionaire Brewer.

J. G. Nolen, who is an old timer in the electrical construction business, tells a story on "Val" Blatz, the millionaire brewer of Milwaukee.

"Our company had had some correspondence with Mr. Blatz regarding the putting in of a telephone plant in his big brewery establishment, and I was sent up to try to close a deal.

"I took a couple of phones with me in order to make a practical demonstration should one be required, and I went with the intention of making a sale.

"I got to talking with Mr. Blatz and showed him the advantage of putting in our intercommunicative system throughout his establishment. He listened attentively, and finally said:

"'Yes, that is all so; very true. But,' and he spoke with the conviction of one who was putting a poser, 'but my men down in the malthouse and the warehouses and cold storage are all Dutchmen.

"'I, myself, though a German and a graduate of Leipsic and Heidelberg, can speak English, but what would your telephones be to my Dutch workmen, who cannot speak English at all?'

"Well, I saw how the land lay. Old Val could not get it through his head that the telephone would transmit anything but the language of America. I was bound to make the deal, as I said before. So I remarked to Mr. Blatz:

"'I can put on some German receivers if you so desire. I have some with me.'

"I connected up the phones, made a show of changing the receivers, and in half an hour Mr. Blatz was talking to one of his Dutchmen down in the malthouse. He was delighted.

"'You may put them in,' he said, 'and I shall want one German one in the malthouse, one German one in each warehouse, English ones in my office and the business office and a German one in the cold storage house.'

"We closed the deal and Mr. Blatz was glad to pay $2 extra for each German enunciator we put in. When the phones were shipped from the factory, I had them labeled German and English respectively, and the big brewer was perfectly satisfied.

"It was five years before I saw Blatz again," concluded Mr. Nolen. "He recognized me at once and said with a hearty German laugh: 'You are the accommodating gentleman who put in the German and English telephones for me. Well, you are a good one.'"—Milwaukee Telephone.

A Negro Turning White.

A curiosity rarely witnessed in this country was seen at the office of the pension examiners in this city today. It was a negro man turning white. The man's name is Sam Smith. He is 87 years old and came here today from Georgetown to stand an examination for a pension, he having served in the Union army. More than three-fourths of the man's entire body is white, the skin fairer by far than that of the ordinary white man. The dark skin remaining on the body is only in small spots. Smith says that his skin began turning white in 1867, and the dark skin has been disappearing from the body ever since. The physicians who examined him today think that should the old man live a few years longer he will be entirely white save perhaps the face. A peculiar feature of the case is that the face has not been turning white along with the rest of the body, the white only showing at a few places beneath the hair on the forehead, and not on the face at all.—Lexington (Ky.) Letter in Cincinnati Enquirer.

To Examine the Eye.

If anything gets into your eye, don't rub it. Good advice, but a little difficult to follow, for one instinctively rubs the eye under those circumstances. Nevertheless, don't do so. Get some one to turn the upper eyelid gently over a thin penholder, so that he may see the ball of the eye thoroughly. If lime gets into the eye and if you see the substance at once, wash out the eye with vinegar to two parts of water. If, however, you can't see the particle immediately, simply put sweet oil or olive oil into the eye and send for the doctor.—New York Ledger.

Dead and Dyed.

"I noticed that Miss Sere's curls are of two colors—brown and gray."

"You remember that her father is a safe manufacturer?"

"What has that to do with it?"

"Her curls are combination locks."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Many of the vegetables in daily use on our dinner tables were known to very remote times. It is known, for instance, that asparagus was grown 200 years B. C., while lettuce was cultivated so far back as 550 B. C.

The statement is made that during the 97 years since the establishment of the state university of Georgia there have been only five deaths among the students.

EASTPORT NEWS.

Song Recital—New Bridge for Lubec—Personal Mention.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Eastport, Aug. 4. A number of people from this city attended the song recital given by Mr. Max Heinrich at the Tyn-y-coed, Campobello, last evening. A boat from here made an excursion over, returning after the concert. Mr. Heinrich is one of the most popular entertainers who visit this fashionable resort. He has a rich baritone voice and renders his selections with all the expression of a natural artist, playing his own accompaniments. Mr. Heinrich appears at the Algonquin at St. Andrews Friday evening.

Gen. S. D. Leavitt was nominated by the Democratic and citizen caucus last evening as a candidate for representative to the Legislature.

A number of teams from Aroostook county that have been employed on the grading here, left today for home.

Major E. E. Newcomb of the recently organized artillery arrived by steamer today on a brief visit home.

John A. Lowe, a former resident of this city, but now an attorney in Boston, arrived by steamer Cumberland today.

Mrs. H. D. Wadleigh of Minneapolis, Minn., arrived from Washington, D. C., today to spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. E. B. McGregor.

Help appears to be somewhat scarce in the factories and notices are frequently posted for skilled labor in the different shops, an occurrence not very common here.

Mrs. B. H. Fabens and family of Lynn, Mass., arrived today and are at her father's, C. N. Dyer, Esq., Washington street.

Geo. Gallagher of Boston is in the city, the guest of his cousin, John R. Roche.

Edw. Bernard of Boston came by steamer today and is the guest of J. D. Anderson, Washington street.

E. M. Cherry has purchased the house on Elm street, owned by Geo. Leavitt, and will move into it.

Chas. C. Capen of Kalamazoo, Mich., arrived today to join his wife, who has been spending the summer in this city.

Miss Lena Smith returned home today from a visit of several weeks in Boston.

The Canadian cable steamer Newfield, Capt. Campbell, has been in the harbor for the past day or two, making the annual inspections of the cable which connects with Grand Manan.

The men are still at work on the new bridge which the Klondike people were erecting at Lubec. An arrangement was entered into between the town and the gold company to build the bridge, each bearing one-half of the expense. After the slump of the company, the town notified the contractors that it would stand to its part of the agreement and the work being too far advanced to be stopped, it is likely that the company will receive but one-half of the contract price, and the people of Lubec will have a nice iron bridge to replace an obsolete wooden one.

The directors of the defunct Electrolytic Marine Salts Company are daily expected at Lubec to look over the premises and decide what will be done.

The accumulation of freight at the International depot will probably make a call from the St. Croix on her Saturday night trip, necessary. This is due to the small carrying capacity of the Tremont now running in place of the State of Maine.

A number of the members of Border Lodge, I. O. O. F., are arranging to make the trip to Houlton on Tuesday, 10th inst., in company with the lodges of Calais and St. Stephen.

LINCOLN NEWS.

Democratic Nomination—Blueberry Picnic—A Serious Accident.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Lincoln, Aug. 5. The Democrats of the Republican class district met in convention at town hall Lincoln Wednesday, 3d inst., and nominated Thomas W. Porter, of Burlington, as representative to the Legislature. Mr. Porter was the unanimous choice of the convention and was nominated by acclamation.

A large party of young people started last Monday for the blueberry plains at Passadumkeag. They have not returned at this writing and are probably enjoying their outing if they don't get many berries. Reports as to berries there are somewhat conflicting. Some say they are scarce while others say they are plenty.

The last two weeks has been very catching weather for finishing up haying and what isn't cut now is very ripe and almost worthless, no matter in how good condition it's got in. A good deal of grain is about ready for the harvest. Should the weather be favorable for harvesting it will be above the average in quality.

At the regular meeting of Mohawk Lodge of K. of P. the officers were installed by W. F. Lovejoy, Dept. G. C., in a very successful manner. Mohawk Lodge has one of the finest lodge rooms east of Boston, nicely fitted and furnished. Much interest is shown and the lodge is prosperous with a bright outlook for the future.

Frank Martin, of Lincoln, a man at work in the woods on what is known as the ... tract, for E. H. & H. F. Pinkham, while in the act of shooting a squirrel with a revolver of large calibre on Thursday afternoon, kneeled on his right knee the better to take aim and accidentally pulled the trigger. The revolver went off and the bullet struck him in the left leg above the ankle, shattering the bones, making it necessary to amputate the leg. The amputation was successfully performed by Drs. Taylor and White of Lincoln. He is getting along as well as could be expected. Mr. Martin is a hard working man and married and much sympathy is felt for him.

REPORTED MESSAGE

From Aguinaldo to Consul Wildman.

"Am I Fighting For Annexation, Protection or Independence."

New York, Aug. 5. The Journal prints a cablegram from Hong Kong purporting to give the text of a message sent by Aguinaldo, the Philippine insurgent leader, to Consul General Wildman. The message is dated Cavite, July 30, and in it Aguinaldo says it has been reported that he is "getting the big head and not behaving" as he promised Mr. Wildman. In replying Aguinaldo says: "I ask why should America expect me to outline my policy, present and future, and fight blindly for her interests, when America will not be frank with me?

"Tell me this, am I fighting for annexation, protection or independence?

"It is for America to say, not me. I can take Manila, as I have defeated the Spanish everywhere, but what's the use?

"If America takes Manila I can save my men and arms for what the future has in store for me.

"Now, good friend, believe me, I am not both fool and rogue. The interests of my people are as sacred to me as are the interests of your people to you."

SENSIBLE SPANIARD.

CAMPOS FOR PEACE.

MADNESS TO REJECT TERMS.

Madrid, Aug. 5. Noon. The conference between the political leaders on the subject of the peace terms continues. Senor Silvela, the conservative leader acting in behalf of Senor Castelar, the republican leader, who was prevented by illness from being present, has conferred with Senor Sagasta on the subject. He said Castelar, although an advocate of peace, was of the opinion that in negotiating its conclusions the government should remember the Virginius affair, when the energy displayed by Spain in dealing with the United States saved Spanish interests, and he thought every effort should be made to preserve Spanish sovereignty over Porto Rico."

Senor Silvela added that he, personally, did not favor any change of policy.

The Liberal, moderate republican, today publishes an interview with Marshal Martinez de Campos, who is quoted as saying:

"I openly favor peace. Everything that has happened in this war could have been foreseen, but the pessimistic could never have imagined that our misfortunes would be so great—the destruction of Montejo's and Cervera's squadrons, the surrender of Santiago and the rapid and unresisted occupation of Porto Rico. No one could have imagined it, even taking into consideration the superiority of the United States. Neither the present government nor any other can change our situation. It would be madness to think of rejecting President McKinley's condition. The Liberal party can bring about peace, but Sagasta should not be asked to sign it. Such a course would not be prudent and another Liberal cabinet should be constructed.

Marshal Martinez de Campos evidently referred to Senor Gamazo as the man who should succeed Sagasta as premier. Gamazo is the present minister of public instruction. His name has been frequently mentioned recently in connection with the premiership in the event of the formation of a new cabinet.

CARMEL.

Our correspondent writes: Daniel Tibbetts, who has been sick for a long time with consumption and confined to the house since December, died at his home on Church street, August 8, aged 59 years. He was a veteran of the late war and belonged to B. H. Beale Post, Bangor.

Mrs. Walter Bray of Pittsfield was in town visiting friends, Thursday.

Miss Marietta Ruggles has one of the best gardens in the village and she has done all the work herself, both fitting the ground and planting and weeding. She has all kinds of vegetables and fruit that you would find in a city garden. It is a garden, that the best of farmers would be justified in being proud of.

AN EXPLANATION.

The reason for the great popularity of Hood's Sarsaparilla lies in the fact that this medicine positively cures. It is America's Greatest Medicine and the American people have an abiding confidence in its merits. They buy and take it for simple as well as serious ailments, confident that it will do them good.

HAMMOND-STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

In order to fix more permanently the important dates of the history of the Hammond street church, I thought it would prove more interesting to the readers to know a little of the local history of the city, in connection with the founding of the church, 1832.

In the previous year, 1831, on January 31, the ground was open and a farmer in the vicinity of Bangor ploughed his field.

The river opened on January 26 and remained so for a long time. On Thursday night, March 31, of that year, the townspeople were alarmed by the watchman informing them the water had risen so very rapidly that it threatened to overflow the business district. On Friday morning the ice came down with such tremendous force as to be thrown with a rush upon the shores in great heaps. In less than five minutes it arose ten or twelve feet above high water mark, overflowing the wharves, lower streets and the bridge.

The water overflowing the Kenduskeag bridge, carried away the railing on both sides, together with the sidewalks and centre arch, leaving only the centre carriage way of earth. The flood went down, however, as soon as it arose, for the jam broke almost immediately. Of course this made much excitement in the town, as well as much damage.

A year after, the fifth church was built in Bangor called the Hammond street Congregational church. It has been incorrectly called the "Second Congregational church." It was incorporated by the former name, only. The same as the Central Congregational church is called incorrectly the "Third church."

It is very natural that people should make this mistake, for the Hammond street church was built second in that denomination, and the Central church third. The Hammond street church began its active history thirteen years after the organization of the fourth church (Unitarian).

Seventy-one individuals in 1832 entered into an agreement to unite in the erection of a meeting house in Bangor on the westerly side of the Kenduskeag stream, the location to be determined by a committee. The spot selected was on Hammond street, known as Patten's Garden, on which the building now stands, and is land deeded by Moses and Amos Patten and James Allen.

Opposite this spot was Gun House Hill used by the artillery and was originally the Savary House. Mr. Savary was one of the old settlers.

The steeple was blown off about 1857 in a tornado.

Rev. John Maltby was the first pastor of this church and remained longest with the society.

In February, 1832, a request was made of Thornton M. Gaw, by several people, that he would issue a warrant for calling a meeting to incorporate them into a parish.

John Godfrey was chosen moderator, William Thurston, clerk; George Starrett, treasurer and collector.

The corporation took the name of the Hammond Street Congregational Society. It was voted to build a church edifice of brick, with a slated roof, at a cost not exceeding $16,000. The building committee were John Godfrey, Thomas A. Hill, Levi Cram, Moses Patten and Edmund Dole.

In December, 1833, the vestry was ready for occupancy, the slips being sold the first day they were offered, amounting to $334. The edifice when completed, was dedicated July 23, 1834, with appropriate services.

The reason why a second church of the Congregational denomination was to be built was that many could not obtain sittings in the First Parish church. They considered the matter at a special meeting, and appointed a committee of ten to report on the subject.

Their report was but one opinion, that a new church should be built. In the afternoon of Nov. 28, 1833, 73 of its members were dismissed, and recommended to form the new church. Rev. Dr. Pond supplied the pulpit most of the time, until July, 1834, when Rev. John Maltby, of Sutton, Mass., was called to the pastorate and was installed July 23, 1834, in the afternoon of the day in which the house of worship was dedicated.

Mr. Maltby was a graduate of Yale College, 1822; Andover Seminary, 1825, and was a trustee of Bangor Theological Seminary 20 years from 1835; secretary of the board from 1837, and president from 1840 until death. During his ministry in Bangor, 20 years, 548 were received into the church. Mr. Maltby died at the age of 65, while absent at Worcester.

When without a pastor, the pulpit was supplied for several months by Rev. Henry G. Storer, of Scarboro, and others, while Dr. Pond, who had been the friend and helper of the church from its organization, was ever ready to supply the pulpit, attend social meetings and perform needed pastoral labor.

At this dedication of the church, edifice and installation of its pastor, an impressive service took place. The organist was Charles Nolcini, an Italian, who composed for the occasion the anthem, "To Thee, O Lord, we Build These Walls." The organ upon which he played was built by Samuel Edwards, of Portland. The latter's son was also organist at one time.

This organ was exchanged in 1846 for a new instrument built by E. & G. Hook, of Boston, and this again in 1854, for a larger organ of the same make at the time the church was remodeled.

The important, local history which happened a year later, in September, 1835, was the foundation of the high school. It began its existence in a dingy room on State street, with accommodations and surroundings anything but pleasant and cheerful. See how we have improved since then!

In this same year, Hon. Daniel Webster was invited and partook of a public dinner at the Bangor House, when upwards of one hundred and fifty gentlemen took seats at the table.

To return to the church history: In 1850, a neat chapel was built on High street in the rear of the church edifice, which was occupied instead of the damp vestries in the basement until the meeting house was remodeled in 1853. This chapel was sold and moved to Broad street. The walls of the church edifice were then raised and lengthened; a spire took the place of the two towers which the first building had; the colonnade removed, and the whole interior of the house refitted, including new pews, organ, pastor's study and vestries. The expense was $18,000. The re-dedicatory services were held Feb. 17, 1854.

An organ voluntary was played by Mrs. John Tufts who was the organist, the choir consisting of Deacon E. F. Duren, J. U. P. Burnham, John Harris, Colon Foster, Misses Danforth, and Dunning. Ora Pearson was director of the music for some time, and was also a sweet singer.

They sang for an anthem, "The Lord Hath Chosen Zion," and "Oh, How Lovely Is Zion," and hymns 669 and 478 from the "Church Psalmody."

The second pastor, Rev. Edwin Johnson, who had been pastor of Bowdoin street church, Boston, from 1857 to 1861, was installed Oct, 16, 1861.

Mr. Johnson graduated at Yale College, 1840; Yale seminary, 1850. He died suddenly, Dec. 25, 1883, at Morrisiana, a suburb of New York city, where he had charge of a young ladies' school.

Mr. Johnson was a warm hearted and lovable man, a scholar in his tastes, and diligent in his ministry. He rendered essential and successful aid in efforts to extinguish the debt of the society, and the parish, on his leaving, voted to repay his own subscription of $500.

In November, 1865, a call was extended to our much honored Rev. John S. Sewall, then of Wenham, Mass., also in 1863 to Rev. Samuel H. Lee, Massachusetts, both of whom declined.

The third pastor was Rev. Solomon Payson Fay, who had been pastor of Salem street church, Boston, in 1843. He was installed, November 9, 1866. The right hand of fellowship was given by Rev. George W. Field, pastor of the Central church. Many other prominent ministers took part in the installation.

Mr. Fay was graduated from Marietta College, Ohio, in 1844, also Andover Seminary, 1847. After thirteen years of faithful work he resigned.

There are many tender and pleasant reminiscences of his labors which endeared him to his people. During his services as pastor, 160 were added to the church.

The fourth and present pastor, Rev. Henry L. Griffin was installed Dec. 28, 1881.

The organ voluntary was played by Miss Fannie Cliff Berry, who succeeded Mrs. F. S. Davenport.

The choir consisted of Mrs. Nellie Blaisdell Belden, Mrs. Annie Sweet Freeland, Mr. W. J. Patten and Mr. James Dinsmore. They sang at the installation service a "Te Deum" and "Hark! What Celestial Sounds!"

Prayer was given by Rev. Lewis F. Stearns of the Bangor Seminary; the sermon was preached by Prof. Edward D. Griffin, D. D. of Williams College.

The right hand of fellowship was again given by Rev. George W. Field.

Mr. Griffin graduated from Williams College in 1868. He was one year at Princeton Seminary; two years at Yale and pastor of the South Church, New Britain, Conn., from 1873 to '78. He then took a two years' course in the University of Berlin, Prussia.

The text was "To me to live is Christ."

The scholarly and at the same time earnest sermons of Mr. Griffin are widely recognized by the clergy of the city and State. His work in the Hammond street church has been one of untiring devotion. His conscientiousness and thoroughness of purpose are his marked characteristics. The church, it will be remembered, a few years ago, was repainted and generally repaired under his guidance, which formerly in 1875 had been frescoed, and the wood work repainted Florence white. One can imagine the striking contrast to the present interior decorations, which are the most striking and unique of any Protestant church in Bangor. Naturally at the time much criticism was heard, favorable and unfavorable concerning the radical change in the church.

I remember at the time Sunday evening services were held with special music. As much to hear the music as to see the much-talked-of decorations, crowds filled the church.

Mr. Davenport was organist at the time and at one of the evening services he played for a voluntary a Mendelssohn overture. I cannot recall which one, and Mrs. Bragg sang a solo beautifully. Mr. George Farrington, Mr. Walter Gordan and Mrs. Gardner formed the quartette. Dr. O. E. Wasgatt played a violin solo. It was an enjoyable service.

The decorations have outlived the criticisms, and the beautiful reds still give warmth and color to the interior, delight to the eye and satisfaction to the artistic sense. So does progression succeed!

Mr. Griffin has a warm place in the hearts of his parishioners, who appreciate his earnest work in the church and his striving to keep the church free from debt.

His interest in the music of the church has been unusual and he has striven as far as possible, to be in perfect unity with the choir.

In speaking of the different ones most interested in the music of the church perhaps no one has been more faithful than Deacon E. F. Duren.

His love for the Hammond street church is, one might say, unbounded. He has been deacon since 1840, and has kept a scrap book of all interesting things connected with his dearly loved church, music, especially. He inherited a love for it. His father, Elnathan Duren, had meetings in his house in 1814, when the initiation and organization of the Boston Handel and Haydn society took place, of which he was a trustee.

We can, if we turn to history, remember that our country was having trouble with England, and the British gave Hampden that unwelcome visit which has made the picturesque little hamlet quite an historic spot.

So it would not be out of reason that the music, to please the loyalists of the time, should be a selection in honor of King George. This selection, however, had two sets of words—for King George, and words suitable for Christmas. Deacon Duren's father was a distinguished leader and singer, and had charge of the music in Park street church, Boston, when the noted Dr. Griffin was pastor. Also of the music in Andover Seminary and Dartmouth College.

It is, then little wonder that with such a distinguished musical parent that the son should be musical. At ten years old the latter picked out tunes and played them upon the piano and sang alto in the choir of the First church, standing upon a cricket, to be even in height with the other singers, and Mr. Duren has been connected with choirs ever since, to within the last ten or fifteen years, not alone in Bangor, but in Boston and Portland, where he was at one time organist. Mr. John D. Godfrey introduced Mr. Duren to the choir in Hammond street church in 1834, and he has been connected with it for more than half a century. He has been singer in the choir, sometimes as leader and organ at, and has had direction of the singing in the Sunday school. When not engaged at Hammond street, he was called on to supply vacancies temporarily in other churches, and with two exceptions has played in each of the churches in the city. At the Hammond street church he was organist about fifteen years.

There have been many organists connected with this church, the names of whom to many may not be familiar.

Mrs. Sarah Mallet was organist for several years. She was a French lady and taught music in the city and was prominent in all musical matters. She died in 1878. Miss Eastman, afterwards Mrs. Hawley, Mr. Fred C. Jones, Mrs. Davenport. She was organist from 1871 to 1881 and served faithfully and well.

Mr. Elisha Coolidge was one of the earlier organists for several years. He was cashier in the La Fayette bank. His daughter was a prominent singer in the choir. When he was organist a quartette consisting of Mrs. G. M. Brown, Mrs. Charles Pierce, Mr Colin Foster, Mr. John Harris sang.

It was the custom then for the quartette to remove their hats, and retire to an ante-room until time for the service to begin. When the organist began to play the voluntary, the director (I think Mr. Foster) would say, "Come now, the liquid sweetness has begun, let us go in." Mrs. Charles Pierce with Mrs. Brown sang a long time in quartette.

Mrs. Alden Dyer played a while. Mrs. Pillsbury's (sister to Mrs. J. B. Ayer and Miss Fannie Cliff Berry) playing was of that sympathetic musical quality which remains in the memory of many of the congregation. Mrs. Mae Ayer Flanders also played with much success. This family certainly has contributed to the organ playing of this church.

Mr. Frank Crowell took charge of the music at one time, playing the organ. He gave one or two vesper services with a chorus choir. His sister, Mrs. Walter Goodenow, sang very sweetly at one of them, "He Shall Feed His Flock" from the Messiah.

Miss Mae Sibley's playing has always been a source of much pleasure to this church, and when she resigned to play at the Unitarian, she had endeared herself very much to the congregation, and they were loth to part with her.

Mr. Wilbur Cochrane is the present organist.

In this church, particularly, there has always been a desire to procure men for organists in preference to women. The reason given is, they have more strength to make more noise when needed.

From the point of view of the committee of course, they are right, but from organists' point of view they are wrong.

A man at an organ can not make one bit more noise than a woman, and the latter in taste and expression often excels the former.

It is not strength alone which makes organ music so beautiful, it is the musical nature, combined with the strength and sad to relate all men have not a musical nature, although they can make a great noise at the organ, but noise is not music. Some of our best organists in the city are slender, graceful women, not noted for their strength, but musical taste and expression. The singing in the church has been varied and very unsettled at times. It has consisted of voluntary choirs, quartette and congregational singing. One quartette was formed by Mr. John Harris, with him sang Miss Lucy Danforth who afterward became his wife, Mr. Frank Warren and Mrs. Charles Pierce, a charming contralto. Mr. James H. Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. Crowell, Mr. W. A. Palmer sang in quartette at one time. Mr. F. S. Hunnewell also presided at the organ for some time.

Another fine quartette was Mrs. Johnson, the wife of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Johnson, who had a beautiful voice, Mrs. W. H. Sawtelle, now Mrs. Pullen, Deacons Samuel D. Thurston and E. F. Duren.

Miss Dora Wiley sang when the deacons were in the quartette with Mrs. E. T. Wasgatt as contralto.

We can imagine even though in a church choir that many quiet good-humored speeches were made. The impressive church service usually leads a choir to the extreme. All the little repartees help to bind closer and in looking backward, leave a sweet scented memory. One need not be less devout, however, in heart.

Mrs. Currier and Mr. and Mrs. Colin Foster, Mrs. George Webster, Mrs. P. B. Denio formed another interesting quartette. In 1872 Mrs. Webster, Mrs. Sawtelle, Mr. Patten and Mr. Emery sang. Later Miss Nellie Blaisdell, Mrs. Lucy Lunt Butler, Messrs. Geo. T. Moody and W. J. Patten. Mr. Moody also was director for a long time.

At another time Miss Blaisdell, Mrs. J. H. Snow, Messrs. W. J. Patten and J. B. Durnday. In the earlier choirs the daughters of Judge Williamson sang.

From 1871 to 1881 there were many changes in the choir. At first it was a voluntary choir with Mr Davenport as chorister. Then Mr. Lemuel Torreus (brother of Mrs. Wasgatt), then Mr. Geo. Sibley. Then there was congregational singing for a time. For a long time it was quite unsettled.

Mr. George Brown sang in quartette at one time. Miss Lillian Sibley, who became Mrs. Greely, sang alto in one of the quartettes. She died about three years ago.

Mr. Ed. Holden and Stephen Alden formed a part of a quartette at one time with Mr. G. W. Merrill and John Edgar Gould. The latter was famous as a musician and composer. He prepared and published a book for church and Sunday school music, also several pieces of vocal and instrumental music in separate forms.

When the funds were lacking quartette music would be set aside and the organist would be alone in the choir loft, and a director would stand in front of the pulpit and lead the congregation. This is what happened when Mrs Davenport was organist and Mr. Patten was director.

Mr. Milton Daggett took great interest in the music and did much for the church. He also gave pleasure to the choir by kind words of appreciation. This is always acceptable to a choir, and especially the organist, who, unfortunately, is rarely appreciated.

In 1871 there were always two services on Sunday, one at 10.30 A. M. and at 3 P. M. in summer, and 2 P. M. in winter, with vestry service in the evening. This lasted for a few years.

Voluntary choirs began with some interest and enthusiasm; and then dwindled to one or two people (history repeats itself). Then a quartette would be engaged.

The choir for four years consisted of Mrs. Annie Semple Bragg, Mrs. W. H. Gardner, Mr. G. S. Farrington, with different tenors, Mr Walter Gordon sang for two years, Mr. McNulty for some months, and Mr. Joseph Bright.

One year or more the congregational singing was led by the organ and cornet. The latter was played by E. C. Adams, who played skillfully a solo for the opening service, or just before the sermon.

At present, the music consists of a chorus choir under the earnest leadership of Mr. N. W. Littlefield, whose zeal is appreciated. Occasionally solos from talented singers are introduced, and the congregation joins heartily in the singing of the hymns.

If you suffer from sores, boils, pimples, or if you are weak and your system run down, you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla. 63

WHOSE FAULT IS IT?

A Local Occurrence That Will Interest Many Readers in Bangor.

If when the fog horn warns the mariner to sheer off the coast he still hugs the shore and wrecks upon it, whose fault is it? If the red switch light is up and the engine driver deliberately pulls ahead and pitches into another train, blame the driver. If a careless workman will in spite of warnings try to find out how many teeth a buzz-saw has and the saw tries to find out how many fingers the workman has, blame the workman, not the saw. If a sick man knows that a certain medicine is doing him good and he carelessly neglects to use it, blame the man, not the medicine. If Bangor people who have back ache and kidney plaint will not use Doan's Kidney Pills when they are recommended by scores of citizens, blame the people, not the indorsers. Read this indorsement.

Mrs. George Wren of No. 30 Larkin street says: "The many little and constantly recurring miseries of kidney ailment are more numerous than can be mentioned and when you can find an antidote for such you are only too pleased to speak of it. I do not judge of Doan's Kidney Pills from hearsay, but from their work. I suffered from lame back. If I lifted anything or stooped, right in the loin a sharp piercing pain always caught me. When carrying my child around it hurt and as it grew worse instead of better it pained me to lie down. I got relief by procuring Doan's Kidney Pills at Ara Warren's drug store and using them. My trouble is over. They did their work thoroughly. The secret of their success lies in the fact that they first correct the kidney action. This is the fruitful cause of lame back and I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for it."

Bismarck, Gladstone and he who is Leo XIII were all living when the battle of Waterloo was fought. Bismarck, the youngest of the three, was then an infant of between two and three months, Gioacchino Pecci was a little more than five years old. Gladstone was five years and a half. The venerable Justin S. Morrill, of Vermont, the father of the United States Senate, is the Pope's junior by less than forty days.

When Ague Shakes You

you can shake the Ague by using AYER'S AGUE CURE. It is the one certain and infallible cure for that depleting disease. It has been tried in many countries and under various conditions, and has never been known to fail. An old veteran writes:—

"You may be interested to know my experience many years ago with Ayer's Ague Cure. The year before the war I was in Kansas. Some twenty of us were engaged in farming, and suddenly all were taken with fever and ague. We tried almost everything without getting any help, till at last I sent to the city and procured a bottle of Ayer's Ague Cure. I recovered at once. The others followed my example, and they, too, recovered. Every one in camp took the remedy and was cured by it. I went all through the war, have lived in thirteen different states of the Union, and have never had the ague since."

O. B. SMITH, St. Augustine, Fla.

There's only one thing to get for ague:

He succeeded beyond all expectation, and it is our confident belief that the result of at least two of his phenomenal purchases, one of Summer Separate Dress Skirts, and of the celebrated "West End" Waists, will prove to be the greatest trade winners "The Fashion" has ever been able to offer.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO INSPECT THESE PURCHASES.

The Correct Thing —IN— SUMMER DRESS SKIRTS

Array, are the Stylish Duck Skirts, that come in navy blue, with pretty dots of white, and trimmed with rows of narrow white braids. It has been hard for manufacturers to fill the demand from the large city stores to say nothing of that outside, up to within two weeks. Some manufacturers, because of the great demand, lost their heads and made up too many, great as was the call. He was the fellow we were looking for, and we found him. Here's the Result: Saturday Morning We Shall Offer 150 Dainty, Blue Duck Skirts, with small white dots, trimmed with 6 rows of narrow braid, a skirt that has sold in all the larger cities at $2.50 and $2.75. Our price $1.25. A FEW VERY SWELL Blue Duck Skirts, trimmed with wide Soutache, White Braid, Spanish Flounce, made up to retail at $3.75 to $4.00, OUR PRICE $1.98. Cool and Dainty, Our

White Pique Skirts and Suits,

... Wanamaker's Greatest Store!

Dieck, the famous New York costume manufacturer, sells the "Wanamaker Store" a great many goods. His representative told us that he had sold thousands of a certain style of Heavy Linen Skirts to Wanamaker's Broadway and Philadelphia stores. Mr. Dieck had a large quantity of these skirts in stock—we bought about 130 of them at a price which enables us to offer them for less than bare cost of material. As to the style, make and quality of these skirts we've nothing to say. It isn't necessary. We'll only state the price everywhere is $2.75,

OUR PRICE WILL BE $1.25.

That speaks for itself.

... TOLD ... SURRENDER.

Santiago's Fall Part of a Peace Plan, so the Story Goes.

IT WAS SPAIN'S CHANCE.

Under the Military Code Toral Would Not Have Dared Yield on Own Authority.

Although the Spanish government has repeatedly disclaimed all responsibility for the fall of Santiago there are good reasons to believe that Gen. Toral's surrender was due to orders from the authorities in Madrid, says the New York Sun. His conduct would otherwise subject him to the penalty of death.

Previous to the surrender of Santiago many of the Madrid newspapers had openly said that the government was longing for defeat in the old city with a view of paving the way towards a cessation of hostilities, which must necessarily come after the country at large should be persuaded of the hopelessness of the struggle. Santiago finally fell and on the very day that the news reached Madrid the government decreed a suspension of constitutional rights and a strict censorship of the press was accordingly established. From that moment the newspapers could not give vent to their feelings, but, more than ever convinced that the government was striving for peace through defeat, some of the leading organs printed exhaustive extracts from the army regulations (Ordenanzas del Ejercito), the text of which makes it evident that Toral would not have dared to act as he did unless in compliance with peremptory orders from his superiors.

Article 673 of the Ordenanzas says: "The Governor must bear in mind that military laws provide the penalty of death with degradation, for the defender of a city who capitulates before having compelled the enemy to go through every one of the slow and successive stages of a regular and methodical siege, and before having repelled an assault, with practicable breach. To cover this grave responsibility the command of an invested city is endowed with extreme effectiveness and latitude. Although the Governor must wisely take counsel with the superior chiefs of the various arms and services he will not in any manner be able to relinquish to them or to anybody else the responsibility which belongs to him."

Article 749 says that when the moment to capitulate has arrived the Governor of the besieged city must call an extraordinary council of officers, to whom he will submit the situation with all possible details as to the strength of the forces available and the munitions and victuals on hand. Each of the officers in council, according to articles 750 and 751, must impartially weigh the arguments in favor or against capitulation, without letting himself to be influenced by any personal or political reasons, and always tending to seek further means to prolong the resistance and place high the honor of the arms. If he should deem that extreme, unavoidable necessity justifies capitulation, he will consider whether there are any means to lessen the effects of the misfortune by saving the garrison either forcibly or through stratagem.

Article 753 leaves it to the Governor finally to resolve as to the mode, form and conditions of the capitulation, and once having decided to capitulate, Article 754 provides that action be taken as to the effects to be destroyed before signing the capitulation, especially those which might serve the enemy as trophies or to increase his fighting strength.

Article 750 forbids the Governor ever to go out of the city limits to parley with the enemy.

Article 761 says: "The act of surrendering a fortified city through capitulation or without it is declared to be dishonorable and punishable as a crime of high treason, in conformity with the military penal code due allowance being made in each case to the gravity of the circumstances, unless it be fully proved:

"1. That all means and resources were duly and intelligently used in order to force the enemy to follow the slow and progressive march of a formal and regular siege, the city having sustained at least one assault on its inner defences, through practicable breaches, and there being no interior fortification nor reasonable possibility further to resist or to prolong the defence.

"2. That there was an absolute lack of munitions and provisions, notwithstanding the fact that these that existed had been judiciously used and that no means had been spared in order to replace them."

Article 530 says: "No General commanding a corps or detachment shall include in the capitulation that he may forcibly have to accept other troops than those which have fought under his immediate command. Those which for one reason or other may be removed from the field of action, and out of the enemy's efficient reach, will consider themselves free to act and save themselves and also those imperilled."

In view of these drastic provisions it is believed by military authorities that Gen. Toral would not be willing to go back to Spain unless he was perfectly sure that nobody there will dare to ask him why, in violation of Article 750, he went out of Santiago to parley with Gen. Shafter; why he surrendered before compelling the American commander to go through the slow progress of a regular siege, as provided in Article 731; why he surrendered thousands of soldiers stationed many miles away from Santiago regardless of the prohibition contained in Article 530, and finally, why it is his idea of a lack of munitions and provisions, having, as he had, 10,000,000 pounds of ammunition and considerable quantities of rice, salt, sugar and coffee, that is to say, more than Article 761 considers necessary to prolong resistance.

Prince Ahmed Self Eddin's recent murderous attack on his brother-in-law, Fuad, Pasha, at the Cairo Khedivial Club has led to a curious suit. The club demands damages from the prince for the harm done to the club's reputation by the disturbance.

ENJOYABLE OUTING.

Annual Encampment of the Castine Normal Alumni Association This Week.

Our correspondent writes from Sandy Point: The twenty-fourth encampment of Castine Normal Alumni Association opened July 29, with a large attendance. President Fred A. Pitcher and wife welcomed the campers. The early days of camp were spent in the usual manner. Monday evening camp songs were sung, followed by a lecture by Dr. Mary Cushman of Castine, subject, "Non-pathogenic Bacteria." Tuesday, August 2nd, was class day. About sixty gathered at an early hour to enjoy the festivities. A sumptuous repast was served at one o'clock. Toasts were responded to by Prof. G. T. Fletcher, Mr. N. S. French, Mrs. Jennie Sargent Carll, Supt. Small of Chelsea, Mr. Stanley D. Gray. All then adjourned to the grove, where a social hour was passed. The evening was much enjoyed with the singing of camp songs, camp fire and pow-wow on the beach.

Wednesday was athletic day. The races and contests were under the supervision of Dr. Frank N. Patterson, and were engaged in with remarkable interest. The numbers increased during the day. In the evening Mr. Noah Brooks addressed a very appreciative audience upon "Personal Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln." Following this was a musical program under the supervision of Mrs. Hattie Oliver Philbrook. This consisted of quartettes, duets and solos. A social hour completed the evening. The prizes were awarded at 8.30 Thursday morning.

Following is the register:

THE OPERA HOUSE.

In three weeks' time the Opera House will again open its doors to the theatre going public, after the usual summer closing, during which the customary rejuvenating and overhauling in the way of cleansing, painting, new carpets, etc., have been accomplished. Manager Owen has had painted an entirely new outfit of scenery of a handsome and realistic character. Three scene painters have been at work six weeks and have turned out some of their best work. A wood scene is an especially fine one. The sets are generally lighter in color than the old scenery and light up with much better effect. The many patrons of the theatre will appreciate the new sets which are no small aid to the work of the actors and actresses. Good scenery is always a strong adjunct to any entertainment. The theatre will first be reopened during fair week. The farce comedy "Nancy Hanks" will be presented the first three nights of that week. Manager Owen has not as yet definitely secured the attraction for the other three nights but will soon decide. James O'Neil will appear at the Opera House soon afterwards, presenting a new play and "Monte Cristo," which he has not given here for two years.
